Louis Malle's Lacombe Lucien, Armand Gatti's The Enclosure and Radu Mihaileanu's Train of Life. The book tackles crucial themes such as the politics of history and its representation, the 1970s obsession with collaboration and the ethical debate around cinema's ability adequately to represent the Shoah. The book fulfils three complementary purposes: to offer a detailed historical and textual analysis of key cinematic works on the Shoah to firmly situate the popular and institutional reception of these works within the political and socio-cultural context of the time; so as to link cinema to society's attitudes towards the Shoah; and thirdly to show how these attitudes have changed over time in order to evince the role cinema has played in the transmission of history and memory. Film and the Shoah in France and Italy shows that cinema has both reflected and affected the dominant perceptions of history, contributing to the transition from recognition to representation of the Shoah. The book also shows how this transition has been slow and uneven and questions whether recognition and commemoration necessarily imply a deeper historical understanding.

Theological Implications of the Shoah Massimo Giuliani, 2002

The Shoah, the Hebrew term for Holocaust, has continued to pervade theological thought, religious practice and the contemporary identity of Judaism. Using the title of Franz Rosenzweig's masterpiece, the Shoah could and perhaps should be called the star of irredemption because of the struggling implications of its radical evil. In Auschwitz, God is at stake because the very existence of the Jews is threatened, but the Jewish identity is also at stake because the justice and reliability of God is questioned. The Shoah poses a double problem of caesura and continuum: it is both a break in the continuity of the tradition and continuity inside of the break of modernity. The intersecting of these two dimensions constitutes the basic hermeneutic conflict of the Jewish consciousness at the beginning of the twenty-first century.
