

Actions

When you take your action on your turn, you can take one of the actions presented here, an action you gained from your class or a special feature, or an action you improvise.

Different types of actions are:

...You may take the Attack action which is the most common. Certain features, such as the Extra Attack feature, allow you to make more than one attack with this action.

...You may use the Cast Spell action as long as that spell has a casting time of 1 action (not a reaction or bonus action).

...You may take the Dash action to double your movement speed for that turn.

Any increase or decrease to your speed changes this additional movement by the same amount.

...You may use the Disengage action to move without provoking opportunity attacks for the rest of the turn.

...You may use the Dodge action to give your Attackers disadvantage on any attack rolls made against you and you make Dexterity saving throws with advantage.

...You may take the Help action to give a creature advantage on their next ability check or advantage against a creature within 5 feet of you (this benefit ends at the beginning of your next turn).

...You may take the Hide action to attempt to Stealth.

...You may take the Ready action to gain the benefits of a reaction later in the round (see the reaction section).

...You may take the Search action and devote your attention to finding something. Depending on the nature of the search, you might have to make a Perception or Investigation check.

...You may take the Use an Object action to interact with specific items that require your attention to use (see some examples below) or to interact with more than one object on the same turn.

- Applying poisons to weapons.
- Drinking or administering a potion.
- Improvised attacks.
- Spread a bag of catnip.

Movement and Positioning

In combat, characters and monsters are in constant motion, often using movement and position to gain the upper hand. Your movement can include many different things, including...

- Climbing, Jumping, and Swimming
- Drawing or sheathing a sword
- Opening or closing a door
- Withdrawing a potion from your backpack
- Pick up a dropped weapon
- Plant a banner in the ground
- Throw a lever or a switch
- Take a book from a shelf you can reach
- Hand an item to another character

Reactions

A reaction is an instant response to a trigger of some kind, which can occur on your turn or someone else's. The opportunity attack is the most common type of reaction.

Different types of reactions are:

...You can make an opportunity attack when a hostile creature that you can see moves out of your reach. Use your reaction to make a melee attack against the creature. You cannot opportunity attack a creature when they are taking the Disengage action, teleporting or when someone or something moves them without them using their movement, action or reaction.

...A readied action gives you the ability to take an action later in the round. You must specify what likely circumstance will trigger your reaction and what action you will choose to respond with "If the goblin steps next to me, I move away". You can ready a spell with a casting time of 1 action which requires the caster's concentration.

...Various class features and other abilities let you take a reaction on your turn.

Bonus Actions

You can take only one bonus action on your turn, and only when a special ability, spell, or other feature of the game states that you can do something as a bonus action.

Different types of bonus actions are:

...A spell cast with a bonus action is especially swift. You must use a bonus action on your turn to cast the spell. You can't cast another spell during the same turn, except for a cantrip with a casting time of 1 action.

...An off-hand attack can be made when you take the Attack action and attack with a light melee weapon that you're holding in one hand, you can use a bonus action to attack with a different light melee weapon that you are holding in your other hand.

You don't add your ability modifier to the damage of the bonus attack, unless the modifier is negative.

...Various class features and other abilities let you take a bonus action on your turn.

...You cannot ready a bonus action.
