goose was short perhaps less than an hour It was long enough for your heart to set up a pounding rhythm against your rib cage causing your breath to come in short thudding gasps and your ear drums to hurt It didn't get any better on arrival as we were herded off the bus like cattle with the new set of guards shouting threatening and barking orders The only thing missing was the electric prod They didn't seem any happier to see us than we were to see them After some preliminary bullying and yelling they herded us about fifty strong into a cell built for about thirty We were ordered to strip and hand out our clothes including skivvies through the bars which was not easy considering that we were literally back to back and belly to belly They passed out some paper tags the kind you would use to label a piece of meat at the butcher shop complete with string which they had gotten from the prison morgue It was a toe tag just like the ones you see on TV One pencil the kind used at a golf course was passed around so we could write our name on our tag That way when not if we died the tag would be attached to our big toe and our next of kin could be notified We stood there at attention buck naked and waited for our turn with the pencil It was summertime and hot so it stunk like the inside of a sewer in that cell The prison was in the desert and none of us had had a shower for a couple of days The smell was enough to make your eyes water and the snot run This was when the real fear set in Those of us with knowledge of history recalled a certain ethnic group across the pond during a famous world war being treated this way Deep down you knew that we were not going to be gassed but about now your mind started to play tricks on you Finally they started to hand out prison jumpsuits by throwing them in your face and telling us to get dressed This was a trick considering we were still jammed in this one cell and we tried not to become intimate with anyone There didn't seem to be any consideration of size and some swapping did help a bit However there was no gas coming out of the ceiling Your heart slowed down a bit and you slowly started to regain a semblance of normal breathing

Louis de Bernieres's first novel The War of Don Emmanuel's Nether Parts received extraordinary critical acclaim. Senor Vivo and the Coca Lord confirms that he is one of the most original talents at work in English fiction. Dionisio Vivo, a young South American lecturer in philosophy, is puzzled by the corpses that keep turning up outside his front door. His friend Ramon, possibly the only honest policeman in town, finds the message all too clear: Dionisio's letters to the press exposing the murderous domination of the drug barons must stop. The local coca lord sends a series of hit men to silence Dionisio, but he seems to lead a charmed life, insulated by a sense of justice and by his own pigheaded integrity. But if he is, in a sense, protected, he is by no means immune, and protection does not extend to those he loves. It is love that makes Dionisio vulnerable to betrayal; love that leads him to colossal revenge. Set in a world where the supernatural is perfectly routine, where wit and affection can blossom in a sump of corruption, where ancient deities walk the streets while the drug trade warps an entire society, Dionisio's battle links disparate strands into a dazzling whole. As in his first novel, Louis de Bernieres turns a quizzical and unblinking gaze on the magical and the mundane, on tenderness and atrocity, on farce and disaster.
