THE BOOK Dreams from My Father A Story of Race and Inheritance is Barack Obama's ode to his early life which was varied and exotic to say the least and would have been challenging for any child. He made the decision to write the book after receiving an advance from a publisher some time after he had been elected president of the Harvard Law Review the first African American to hold the position. Dreams from My Father was first published in 1995 in the style of a memoir and marked the initial expression of the young Democrat's political ambition. Obama was aged only 34 at the time and was gaining a reputation as a community activist, a civil rights lawyer and a university lecturer. And in 2004, after almost a decade of considerable political success and in the run up to being voted the Senator for Illinois, Obama decided to re-publish the book for a second time. In his introduction, he said he originally wrote the book with the belief that the story of my family and my efforts to understand that story might speak in some way to the fissures of race that have characterized the American experience as well as the fluid state of identity, the leaps through time, the collision of cultures that mark our modern life. Barack Obama Joann F. Price, 2009. This book offers a revealing look at Barack Obama, the Democratic nominee for the 2008 presidency, from the perspective of quotations by and about Obama on his heritage and family, state and national politics, his run for the presidency, the issues of the day, community activism and service, and thoughts on race and faith.

The Crisis, 1995-10. The Crisis, founded by W. E. B. Du Bois as the official publication of the NAACP, is a journal of civil rights history, politics and culture and seeks to educate and challenge its readers about issues that continue to plague African Americans and other communities of color. For nearly 100 years, The Crisis has been the magazine of opinion and thought leaders, decision makers, peacemakers and justice seekers. It has chronicled, informed, educated, entertained and in many instances set the economic, political and social agenda for our nation and its multi-ethnic citizens.

A Nation of Laws Peter Charles Hoffer, 2010. An introduction to and meditation on the key concepts, history, evolution, complexities and importance of law in our nation's 233-year existence.

Barack Obama and African American Empowerment Manning Marable, Kristen Clarke, 2009-10-15. Barack Obama and the African American Empowerment examines the evolution of black leadership and politics since the Civil Rights Movement. It looks at the phenomenon of Barack Obama from his striking emergence as a successful candidate for the Illinois State Senate to President of the United States as part of the continuum of African American political leaders. The reader also examines the evolving ideals about the roles of government and the economy in addressing the historic disadvantages experienced by many African Americans. Here, some of the nation's most influential intellectuals bring together original scholarship to look at the future of national politics and American race relations.
