Soriano, 2007-05-26 Prior to the evolution of modern medicine with its superabundance of diagnostic and therapeutic medical technology and the rise of the litigious society the value of clinical skills was evident in both history taking and the physical examination Even today physicians can make a correct diagnosis solely by utilizing their clinical skills in about 90% of patient encounters Furthermore in the past physicians understood their role as a psychologist and were more apt to be familiar with the social context of their patients House calls were common The doctor was also a placebo who at his best inspired hope and probably sped recovery Geriatricians use both clinical skills and take advantage of modern technology sparingly for they know they are dealing with the most challenging and frail of patients older patients who so often present with multiple complex interacting behavioral social and physical problems In contrast to medicine for young people working with the older patient is much more demanding Furthermore the complex issue of societal attitudes toward old people can come into play especially the physician's need to deal with natural fears of aging dependency depression dementia and death Ageism is the enemy of effective medical treatment At its best geriatrics exemplifies ways that medical care for all ages can become more humane problem oriented and holistic Case Studies in Geriatrics Judith C. Schuchman, 2019-08-29 As the population of older adults in the U S continues to grow medical house calls are increasingly part of a system of comprehensive home based care for patients who have difficulty accessing office based care Clinicians who have been trained mostly in office and hospital settings must adapt their usual approaches to accommodate a wide range of environmental social and physical circumstances that impact home limited patients Ideally a comprehensive team of clinicians proficient in multiple domains of functional social and medical care can work together to address potential gaps in any one clinician's expertise Unfortunately such teams are still rare This book aims to equip individual clinicians with the interdisciplinary knowledge skills and perspective they need to provide the best care possible with limited formal interdisciplinary support This book offers 20 patient cases drawn from the collective experience of experts in home based medical care from highly respected academic and clinical programs across the United States Each case demonstrates a scenario that is frequently encountered and or very important in home based medical care practice Each scenario frequently proves to be challenging for many professionals because it requires an approach or leverages aspects of care delivery that most are not trained in Additionally each scenario reflects an approach to care that is enhanced by interdisciplinary input Finally each case lends itself to a practical problem solving approach that could be accomplished by most home based medical care providers even in the absence of an interdisciplinary team Written by interdisciplinary experts in geriatric home based care this book serves as both an educational tool for learners in all related disciplines as well as a quick reference for experienced clinicians looking to augment their existing house call toolbox
