Handbook Of Land And Water Grabs In Africa Foreign Direct Investment And Food And Water Security Routledge International Handbooks:

Handbook of Land and Water Grabs in Africa John Anthony Allan, Martin Keulertz, Suvi Sojamo, Jeroen Warner, 2012-09-10 According to estimates by the International Land Coalition based at the International Fund for Agricultural Development IFAD 57 million hectares of land have been leased to foreign investors since 2007 Current research has focused on human rights issues related to inward investment in land but has been ignorant of water resource issues and the challenges of managing scarce water This handbook will be the first to address inward investment in land and its impact on water resources in Africa The geographical scope of this book will be the African continent where land has attracted the attention of risk taking investors because much land is under utilised marginalized land with associated water resources and rapidly growing domestic food markets The successful implementation of investment strategies in African agriculture could determine the future of more than one billion people An important factor to note is that Sub Saharan Africa will of all the continents be hit hardest by climate change population growth and food insecurity Sensible investment in agriculture is therefore needed however at what costs and at whose expense The book will also address the livelihoods theme and provide a holistic analysis of land and water grabbing in Sub Saharan Africa Four other themes will addressed politics economics environment and the history of land investments in Sub Saharan Africa The editors have involved a highly diverse group of around 25 expert researchers who will review the pro and anti investment arguments geopolitics the role of capitalist investors the environmental contexts and the political implications of and reasons for leasing millions of hectares in Sub Saharan Africa To date there has been no attempt to review land investments through a suite of different lenses thus this handbook will differ significantly from existing research and publication The editors are Tony Allan Professor Emeritus Department of Geography School of Oriental and African Studies and King s College London Jeroen Warner Assistant Professor Disaster Studies University of Wageningen Suvi Sojamo PhD Researcher Water and Development Research Group Aalto University and Martin Keulertz PhD Researcher Department of Geography London Water Group King s College London

Handbook of Land and Water Grabs in Africa John Anthony Allan, 2013 Four other themes will addressed politics economics the environment and the history of land investments in sub Saharan Africa Food for All in Africa Gordon Conway, Ousmane Badiane, Katrin Glatzel, 2019-11-15 Africa requires a new agricultural transformation that is appropriate for Africa that recognizes the continent s diverse environments and climates and that takes into account its histories and cultures while benefiting rural smallholder farmers and their families In this boldly optimistic book Sir Gordon Conway Ousmane Badiane and Katrin Glatzel describe the key challenges faced by Africa s smallholder farmers and present the concepts and practices of Sustainable Intensification SI as opportunities to sustainably transform Africa s agriculture sector and the livelihoods of millions of smallholders The way forward they write will be an agriculture sector deeply rooted within

SI producing more with less using fertilizers and pesticides more prudently adapting to climate change improving natural capital adopting new technologies and building resilience at every stage of the agriculture value chain Food for All in Africa envisions a virtuous circle generated through agricultural development rooted in SI that results in greater yields healthier diets improved livelihoods for farmers and sustainable economic opportunities for the rural poor that in turn generate further investment It describes the benefits of digital technologies for farmers and the challenges of transforming African agricultural policies and creating effective and inspiring leadership Food for All in Africa demonstrates why we should take on the challenge and provides ideas and methods through which it can be met

Land Use Competition Jörg Niewöhner,Antje Bruns,Patrick Hostert,Tobias Krueger,Jonas Ø. Nielsen,Helmut Haberl,Christian Lauk,Juliana Lutz,Daniel Müller,2016-07-29 This book contributes to broadening the interdisciplinary knowledge basis for the description analysis and assessment of land use practices It presents conceptual advances grounded in empirical case studies on four main themes distal drivers competing demands on different scales changing food regimes and land water competition Competition over land ownership and use is one of the key contexts in which the effects of global change on social ecological systems unfold As such understanding these rapidly changing dynamics is one of the most pressing challenges of global change research in the 21st century This book contributes to a deeper understanding of the manifold interactions between land systems the economics of resource production distribution and use as well as the logics of local livelihoods and cultural contexts It addresses a broad readership in the geosciences land and environmental sciences offering them an essential reference guide to land use competition

How to Deal with Climate Change? Beatrice Mosello,2015-03-03 As the evidence for human induced climate change becomes more obvious so too does the realisation that it will harshly impact on the natural environment as well as on socio economic systems Addressing the unpredictability of multiple sources of global change makes the capacity of governance systems to deal with uncertainty and surprise essential However how all these complex processes act in concert and under which conditions they lead to the sustainable governance of environmental resources are questions that have remained relatively unanswered This book aims at addressing this fundamental gap using as case examples the basins of the Po River in Northern Italy and the Syr Darya River in Kyrgyzstan The opening chapter addresses the challenges of governing water in times of climate and other changes Chapter Two reviews water governance through history and science The third chapter outlines a conceptual framework for studying institutional adaptive capacity The next two chapters offer detailed case studies of the Po and Syr Darya rivers followed by a chapter length analysis and comparison of adaptive water resources management in the two regions The discussion includes a description of resistant reactive and proactive institutions and puts forward ideas on how water governance regimes can transition from resistant to proactive The final chapter takes a high level view of lessons learned and how to transform these into policy recommendations and offers a perspective on embracing uncertainty and meeting future challenges

Water Resilience for Human Prosperity Johan

Rockström, Malin Falkenmark, Carl Folke, Mats Lannerstad, Jennie Barron, Elin Enfors, Line Gordon, Jens Heinke, Holger Hoff, Claudia Pahl-Wostl, 2014-03-27 The world's human population now constitutes the largest driving force of changes to the biosphere. Emerging water challenges require new ideas for governance and management of water resources in the context of rapid global change. This book presents a new approach to water resources addressing global sustainability and focusing on socio-ecological resilience to changes. Topics covered include the risks of unexpected change, human impacts and dependence on global water, the prospects for feeding the world's population by 2050 and a pathway for the future. The book's innovative and integrated approach links green and blue freshwater with terrestrial and aquatic ecosystem functions and use. It also links changes arising from land use alteration with the impacts of those changes on social-ecological systems and ecosystem services. This is an important state-of-the-art resource for academic researchers and water resource professionals and a key reference for graduate students studying water resource governance and management. Crisis and Conflict in Agriculture Rami Zurayk, Eckart Woertz, Rachel Bahn, 2018-09-18 This volume sets out to explore the dialectic relating agriculture, crisis and conflict and attempts to expand the knowledge on these interactions. Part 1 of the volume (chapters 1-6) discusses thematic issues and methodological approaches to understanding the intersection of agriculture, crisis and conflict. Part 2 (chapters 7-20) provides case studies that take a detailed approach to understanding agricultural contexts facing crisis and conflict or the role played by agriculture within crisis and conflict. Studies are selected from areas that might be expected to feature in such a volume: the Middle East and North Africa, sub-Saharan Africa, South and Southeast Asia and Latin America, as well as less obvious regions where conflict within agriculture refers not to widespread violence or wars but rather latent or simmering crisis. Central Asia and Europe. Crises stemming from politically driven violence, natural disasters and climate change are covered, as well as competition over resources. Groundwater in Africa : is there sufficient water to support the intensification of agriculture from 'land grabs'? A.M. MacDonald, R.G. Taylor, H.C. Bonsor, 2013 Global Land

Grabs Marc Edelman, Carlos Oya, Saturnino M. Borrás Jr., 2016-03-22 Since the 2008 world food crisis, a surge of land grabbing swept Africa, Asia and Latin America and even some regions of Europe and North America. Investors have uprooted rural communities for massive agricultural biofuels, mining, industrial and urbanisation projects. Water grabbing and green grabbing have further exacerbated social tensions. Early analyses of land grabbing focused on foreign actors, the biofuels boom in Africa and pointed to catastrophic consequences for the rural poor. Subsequently, scholars carried out local case studies in diverse world regions. The contributors to this volume advance the discussion to a new stage, critically scrutinizing alarmist claims of the first wave of research, probing the historical antecedents of today's land grabbing, examining large-scale land acquisitions in light of international human rights and investment law and considering anew longstanding questions in agrarian political economy about forms of dispossession and accumulation and grassroots resistance. Readers of this collection will learn about the impacts of land and water grabbing, the relevance of key theorists including Marx, Polanyi and Harvey the realities of China's involvement in Africa how contemporary land grabbing differs from earlier plantation agriculture and how social movements and rural people in general are responding to this new threat This book was published as a special issue of Third World Quarterly

Land Grabs in a Green African Economy Nhamo, Godwell, Chekwoti, Caiphas, 2014-12-10 This book focuses on profiling from both literature based and primary research points of orientation instances of land grabs and or acquisitions with a focus on the implications of land grabs for trade investment and development policy in Africa under the global green economy transition agenda In many instances case studies and examples paint a picture that could be of use to policy makers Overall the book advocates a satisfy satisfy orientation when land deals are made as well as total transparency from key actors building grassroots negotiation capacity and awareness To illustrate some of the emerging issues in terms of land grabs acquisition and their implications for trade investment and development policies the sixth Trade Policy Training Centre in Africa trapca conference took place in Arusha Tanzania on 24 and 25 November 2011 The conference had two objectives 1 to come up with concrete policy interventions and recommendations that would harness foreign investment in land on the continent and 2 to publish this edited book of selected papers presented at the conference that met the rigorous specifications laid down by the editors and publishers One of the major revelations to emerge from the Conference was that there is no vacant land in Africa In addition participants took the view that land deals in Africa needed to be done on a satisfy satisfy satisfy rather than a win win win basis This book is jointly published by trapca and the Africa Institute of South Africa AISA

Harnessing Land and Water Resources for Improved Food Security and Ecosystem Services in Africa Oku, Effiom E., Asubonteng, Kwabena O., 2015-04-23 Africa is endowed with rich land and water resources which significantly contribute to the development of many economies on the continent However land degradation and water pollution remain major challenges facing many African countries Harnessing Land and Water Resources for Improved Food Security and Ecosystem Services in Africa examines challenges facing land and water resources management in Africa and explores possible measures to improve food security and reduce poverty on the continent The book is a compilation of research papers written by eminent researchers and scientists from renowned Universities and reputable organisations in Ghana Ethiopia USA South Africa Nigeria the Netherlands and Indonesia Its main objective is to draw attention to the impact of human activities on land and water resources and the need for the sustainable management of Africa's ecosystem services to improve livelihoods The individual chapters present relevant case studies on the effects of water and land management practices including urban waste water uses land grabbing and climate change issues so as to draw lessons from best practices that can be adopted to mitigate their efforts on food security and the well being of the African population The monograph concludes with recommendations on the appropriate strategies for managing wastelands to meet Africa's green energy needs

Guidelines for sustainable large-scale land deals in Africa Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-08-09 Over the last few years agribusinesses investment funds and government agencies have demonstrated a growing interest in acquiring large portions of land mostly in developing countries and particularly in sub Saharan Africa In the host countries investors and government see these acquisitions as opportunities to attract foreign investment that will enhance food and energy security and stimulate socio economic development Analysing a number of these deals in Africa suggests that these objectives are usually not attained and that their sustainability appears to be uncertain

The Great African Land Grab? Lorenzo Cotula, Introduction Historical roots of the land rush Scale geography and drivers of the land rush Land grabbing in the shadow of the law Winners and losers Conclusion

The Political Economy of Land and Water Grabs David Zetland, Jennifer Möller-Gulland, 2013 We discuss the impact of corruption as a contributing factor to land grabs in SSA and examine land grab deals by country pairs to identify which deals may be grabs and which may be normal FDI Most deals are made by corrupt selling countries but buying countries vary in their corruption indicating that some of these deals may be misclassified FDI We also examine the potential for over exploitation of water resources in these countries Sudan with high corruption and strained water resources is likely to suffer the most from land grabs A comparison between 17 SSA countries with heavy grab activity and 27 others with lower levels of activity reveals that grab targets have the same or better governance and water resources a finding that contradicts a hypothesis that these deals are harmful grabs but supports one that they are beneficial FDI Deals called grabs may not be This is the WORKING paper version of the chapter that was eventually published by Taylor and Routledge Email David if you have any questions about corrections to this text or page numbers for citation

Land Grabbing and Home Country Development Ariane Goetz, 2019-05-13 Since 2008 foreign land acquisitions have attracted international attention under the term land grabbing Illustrated by rich and nuanced empirical accounts of forty Chinese and British investment projects in Sub Saharan Africa Ariane Goetz explains the phenomenon of land grabbing from the perspective of two investor countries She reflects on Chinese and British public policy state society relations national developmental contexts ideologies and international relations and thereby gives insights into the political economies that enable these investments as well as the development ambitions and institutionalized paradigms of which they form a part

Land Grabbing in Africa Fassil Demissie, 2017-07-27 The sign that Africa is on Sale has been appearing with regular frequency in major newspaper accounts across the world indicating that large amounts expanses of Africa s rich farmlands are being sold to transnational investors usually on long term leases at a rate not seen in decades indeed not since the colonial period Transnational and national economic actors from various business sectors oil and auto mining and forestry food and chemical bioenergy etc are eagerly acquiring or declaring their intention to acquire large areas of land on which to build maintain or extend large scale extractive and agro industrial enterprises to help secure their own food and energy needs into the future This book provides a critical appraisal of the growing phenomenon of land grabbing in Africa Far from being a technical issue associated good governance the problem of land grabbing by transnational corporation and states is a serious threat for the food security of millions of Africans and is undoubtedly one of the great challenges of our time for development on the continent The case studies illustrate that African states are also complicit in the massive land grabbing by actively participating in isolated development while excluding the local communities The case studies reveal key features that characterize how the global land grab plays out in specific localities in Africa This book was published as a special issue of African Identities Water Harvesting in Sub-Saharan Africa William Critchley, John Gowing, 2013-01-04 Agriculture in Sub Saharan Africa is constrained by highly variable rainfall frequent drought and low water productivity There is an urgent need heightened by climate change for appropriate technologies to address this problem through managing and increasing the quantity of water on farmers fields water harvesting This book defines water harvesting as a set of approaches which occupy an intermediate position along the water management spectrum extending from in situ moisture conservation to irrigated agriculture They generally comprise small scale systems that induce collect store and make use of local surface runoff for agriculture The authors review development experience and set out the state of the art of water harvesting for crop production and other benefits in Sub Saharan Africa This includes an assessment of water harvesting schemes that were initiated two or three decades ago when interest was stimulated by the droughts of the 1970s and 1980s These provide lessons to promote sustainable development of dryland agriculture in the face of changing environmental conditions Case studies from eight countries across Sub Saharan Africa provide the evidence base Each follows a similar format and is based on assessments conducted in collaboration with in country partners with a focus on attempts to promote adoption of water harvesting both horizontally spread and vertically institutionalization Introductory cross cutting chapters as well as an analytical conclusion are also included Land Grabbing and Corrupt Government Gabriel Feyisetan, 2017 This book provides background information on how corrupt practices in government and international organizations have lead to the disruption of traditionally land based societies and the displacement of its people through land grabs often for water resources that benefit few at the expense of many Those dispossessed of their land face hardship of move into cities where they become dependent upon an unreliable labor market The focus is on Africa in general and Nigeria in particular The Global Land Grab Annelies Zoomers, Mayke Kaag, 2014-02-13 The last two years have seen a huge amount of academic policy making and media interest in the increasingly contentious issue of land grabbing the large scale acquisition of land in the global South It is a phenomenon against which locals seem defenceless and one about which multilateral organizations such as the World Bank as well as civil society organizations and action NGOs have become increasingly vocal This in depth and empirically diverse volume taking in case studies from across Africa Asia and Latin America takes a step back from the hype to explore a number of key questions Does the global land grab actually exist If so what is new about it And what beyond the immediately visible dynamics and practices are the real problems A comprehensive and much needed intervention on one of the most hotly contested but little understood issues facing countries of the South today
