Changing Language Teaching Through Language Testing Liying Cheng, 2005-10-06 There has been growing interest in recent years in the influence of tests on teaching and learning a phenomenon commonly referred to as washback. Despite persistent assertions about its nature and scope, empirical studies investigating test washback are still limited in number and few of these make use of both qualitative and quantitative methods in washback research. This volume presents a study of how the introduction of the 1996 Hong Kong Certificate of Education in English, a high stakes public examination, impacted on classroom teaching and learning in Hong Kong secondary schools. The washback effect was observed initially at the larger macro level among different stakeholder groups within the Hong Kong educational context and also at the more local micro level in terms of teachers' attitudes, teaching content and classroom interactions. This study provides a theoretical background to the washback concept, discusses the need for empirical investigation of washback, describes the use of a mixed methodology approach in washback research, offers insights into the role of tests as agents of innovation and change in the classroom and broader educational context. This volume will be of particular relevance to language test developers and researchers interested in the consequential validity of tests; it will also be of interest to teachers, curriculum designers, policymakers and others in education concerned with the interface between language testing and teaching practices.

Book jacket Teaching and Learning Language: Current Trends and Practices (Penerbit USM) Ambigapathy Pandian, Sunny Tan Siew Bek, Shaik Abdul Malik Mohamed Ismail, 2014 This book represents a collection of papers that relate to the challenges and problems posed by the ever-changing and diversified nature of today's classroom. The papers discuss and demonstrate methodologies and learning strategies and, in the process, recommend effective practices that are practical and open to adaptation for different teaching and learning contexts. They range from suggestions on how to exploit information technology resources to individual or specific case studies. These case studies report on a variety of contextual issues and problems that are specified to particular learning contexts. This book therefore not only offers examples of tried and tested teaching strategies but also offers useful insights into specific sociocultural problems that are experienced by learners as well as teachers and interested stakeholders in particular settings and countries. The papers offer a comprehensive documentation of past as well as present problems faced by teachers, policy makers and students and discuss ways and strategies of overcoming such problems such that the teaching and learning process is not only enhanced but made more meaningful and fulfilling to both teachers and learners. The inherently global perspective of the papers in this book makes it an enriching compendium.

Washback in Language Testing Liying Cheng, Yoshinori Watanabe, WITH Andy Curtis, 2004-02-04 Washback refers to the influence of language testing on teaching and learning. This volume, at the important intersection of language testing and teaching practices, presents theoretical, methodological and practical guidance for current and future washback studies. In the field of language testing, researchers' major interest has traditionally been focused on issues and solving problems inherent in tests in order to increase their reliability and validity. However, the washback effect goes well beyond the test itself to include factors such as curriculum, teacher and learner behaviors inside and outside the classroom, their perceptions of the test and how test scores are used. Only recently have researchers started to empirically investigate the phenomenon of washback. This volume of such research serves two essential purposes by providing an overview of the complexity of washback and the various contextual factors entangled within testing, teaching and learning, and presenting empirical studies from around the world that offer insights into the effects of washback in specific educational contexts and models of research on which future studies can be based. The extensive use of test scores for various educational and social purposes in society nowadays makes the washback effect a high interest phenomenon in the day to day educational activities of teachers, researchers, program coordinators, directors, policymakers and others in the field of education. Washback in Language Testing: Research Contexts and Methods is a valuable resource for those who are interested in the application of findings to actual teaching and learning situations or conduct washback research in their own contexts, including educational and psychological testing experts as well as alternative assessment people in all fields and for policy and decision makers in educational and testing organizations.

Language Planning in the Asia Pacific Robert Kaplan, Richard Baldauf, 2013-12-16 This volume covers the language situation in Hong Kong, Timor Leste and Sri Lanka, explaining the linguistic diversity, the historical and political contexts and the current language situation, including language in education, planning, the role of the media, the role of religion and the roles of non indigenous languages. Two of the authors are indigenous to the situations described while the other has undertaken extensive field work and consulting there. The three monographs contained in this volume draw together the literature on each of the polities to present an overview of the research available about each of them while providing new research based information. The purpose of the volume is to provide an up to date overview of the language situation in each polity based on a series of key questions in the hope that this might facilitate the development of a richer theory to guide language policy and planning in other polities where similar issues may arise. This book was published as special issues of Current Issues in Language Planning.

English Language Assessment and the Chinese Learner Liying Cheng, Andy Curtis, 2010-03-17 Building on current theoretical and practical frameworks for English language assessment and testing, this book presents a comprehensive up to date relevant picture of English language assessment for students in China Mainland, China, Hong Kong and Taiwan and for Chinese learners of English around the world.

Student Perspectives on Assessment Dennis M. McInerney, Gregory Arief D. Liem, Gavin T. L. Brown, 2009-12-01 Assessment for learning is meant to engage, motivate and enable students to do better in their learning. However, how students themselves perceive assessments, both high stakes qualifications and low stakes monitoring, is not well understood. This volume collects research studies from Europe, North and South America, Asia and New Zealand that have deliberately focused on how students in primary, secondary and tertiary education conceive of, experience, understand and evaluate assessments Assessment for learning has assumed that formative assessments and classroom practices would be an unqualified success in terms of student learning outcomes Making use of a variety of qualitatively interpreted focus groups observations and interviews and factor analytic survey methods the studies collected in this volume raise doubts as to the validity of this formulation We commend this volume to readers hoping to stimulate their own thinking and research in the area of student assessment We believe the chapters will challenge researchers policy makers teacher educators and instructors as to how assessment for learning can be implemented

Validating Technological Innovation David Coniam, Peter Falvey, 2016-04-02 This book discusses Hong Kong's use of onscreen marking OSM in public examinations Given that Hong Kong leads the way in OSM innovation this book has arisen from a recognised need to provide a comprehensive coherent account of the findings of various separate but linked validation studies of onscreen public examinations in Hong Kong The authors discuss their experience of the validation process demonstrating how high stakes innovation should be fully validated by a series of research studies in order to satisfy key stakeholders

Assessing Chinese Learners of English Guoxing Yu, Yan Jin, 2016-02-17 This volume gathers researchers from around the world endeavouring to better understand a number of perennial issues in assessing Chinese learners of English covering topics such as students test performances interactional competence and lexical knowledge students motivation teachers attitudes and assessment policy changes

Researching Chinese Language Education Mark Shiu-kee Shum, Peter Mican, 2018-09-13 The culmination of more than a decade of research this compelling volume offers a fresh approach for applying functional linguistics to assess student performance to inform the teaching and learning of Chinese and to design curriculum and teaching materials Documenting authentic systemic functional linguistics SFL studies in researching and teaching Chinese as a first or second language this research is set in the multilingual settings of Hong Kong and Australia The experiences of SFL and genre teaching in English have been well demonstrated as valid viable and practical in different contexts however this volume covers the relatively new domain of research into the applications of SFL to the teaching of Chinese Using SFL as the research framework the authors cover three major areas in Chinese language education effective pedagogies curriculum and material design and text analysis Covering major local curriculum reforms and the rapid growth of International Baccalaureate programmes worldwide this book will be of interest to linguists language teachers and teacher educators and those involved in the teaching and learning of Chinese around the world

Hong Kong's Chinese History Curriculum from 1945 Flora L.F. Kan, 2007-01-01 Hong Kong's Chinese History Curriculum from 1945 Politics and Identity investigates the ways in which Chinese history has evolved as a subject in Hong Kong secondary schools since 1945 and the various social political and economic factors that have shaped the curriculum through an examination of a wide range of primary and secondary source materials and interviews This book examines how the aims content teaching learning and assessment of the Chinese history curriculum have evolved since 1945 It describes how Chinese history became an independent subject in secondary schools in Hong Kong despite the political sensitivity of the subject how it consolidated its status during the colonial period and how it has faced threats to its independence since the return of Hong Kong to China in 1997 An important element of the book is its in depth analysis of the major socio political and socio economic forces that have been involved in the development of Chinese history This book will be of interest to all who are interested in history education and curriculum development and readers who are concerned with history education Making Sense of Education in

Post-Handover Hong Kong Thomas Kwan-Choi Tse, Michael H. Lee, 2016-11-10 Since 1997 when Hong Kong became a Special Administrative Region of the People's Republic of China a string of education reforms have been introduced to improve the quality of education and maintain Hong Kong's economic competitiveness in the age of globalization This book provides a comprehensive and critical analysis of major issues and challenges faced by the education system ranging from pre school to higher education It analyses the prospects for educational development in Hong Kong It further addresses how the Hong Kong government has responded to the perceived challenges of the external environment and internal forces and explains the rationales for the actions taken Not only does it review how the reform initiative challenges have been dealt with it also reviews how effective these initiatives are and its implications on future directions Global Practices of
