disorder symptomatology above and beyond the variance of the proposed moderators suggesting that it is a unique predictor of disordered eating for college women

The Relationship Between Self-compassion and Disordered Eating

Behaviors Angela Danielle Finley-Straus, 2011 The concept of self compassion has been gathering interest for researchers in recent years as it appears to offer an array of benefits to wellbeing This study investigated the potential role of self compassion as a protective factor against disordered eating behaviors It also examined the mediating roles of three potential variables body dissatisfaction perfectionism and contingent self worth Given modern representations of the female ideal failure to achieve or adequately conform to such standards often poses psychological challenges for women and girls Self compassion encompasses kind mindful self treatment and may be an ideal protective factor against disordered eating It has also been linked with lower body dissatisfaction maladaptive perfectionism and contingent self worth The present study found that dissatisfaction with one's body as well as a tendency to judge one's personal worth based on appearance fully mediated the relationship between self compassion and both restrained and emotional disordered eating respectively Therefore a self compassionate attitude may serve as a protective factor against engaging in disordered eating vis vis strengthening young women's abilities to look at their bodies in a more compassionate and unconditionally accepting way

Exploring Self-discrepancy and Body Shame Models of Perfectionistic Self-presentation in Moderating the Relationship Between Body Image Disturbance and Appearance Management Behaviors in a College Female Sample

Megan Agee Guidry, University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Department of Psychology, 2013 Previous studies have measured facets of perfectionism within a disease model focusing heavily on the eating disordered population The present study sought to further explore an interpersonal dimension of perfectionism within a nonclinical sample to see if this type of perfectionism moderated the relationship between body image dissatisfaction and behaviors aimed at changing the physical appearance A sample of young women N 475 were given measures to assess negative perfectionism interpersonal perfectionism body dissatisfaction and shame sociocultural perceptions and appearance management behaviors Three significant interactions were observed among body shame sociocultural perceptions and interpersonal perfectionism Additionally negative perfectionism displayed a robust and consistent relationship with other predictor variables throughout Specific types of sociocultural perceptions on appearance were significant predictors of changing one's appearance in response to body image disturbance These findings may steer future prevention research to explore how these personality and sociocultural factors influence appearance management behaviors
