

Comparing Informative and Persuasive Speaking

Informative versus Persuasive Speaking

1. Persuasive speeches tend to have more controversial purposes.
2. Persuasive speeches seek more powerful responses from listeners.
3. Persuasive speeches need more and better proof.
4. Persuasive speeches require the speaker to earn greater credibility.

The Controversial Nature of the Purpose

Persuasive speeches aim to change listeners' attitudes, beliefs, or behaviors by influencing their mind rather than to give new information.

The Response Sought

Persuasive speeches seek a more powerful response from listeners: change rather than acceptance of new information.

The Evidence Needed

Listeners want more convincing evidence to be persuaded rather than relying on simple facts.

The Importance of Credibility

The persuasive speaker must have more credibility because they ask more of listeners than the informative speaker does.

Persuasive Informative Entertaining And Expressive:

Empirical Studies of Literature David S. Miall, 2013-12-16 The sixth conference of the International Society for the Empirical Study of Literature or IGEL was held in August 1998 in Utrecht Holland The conference brought together a wide range of scholars concerned with understanding the place and role of literature in its social historical psychological linguistic and other dimensions and who seek to advance our knowledge through empirical methods or more effective theoretical perspectives that may lead to empirical research This special issue is based on papers from this conference and represents just a small part of its rich variety

Knowledge in Minds A. L. Wilkes, 1997 Many texts in cognitive psychology deal with the details of cognitive processes as individually defined This text provides an account of cognition that focuses upon the cumulative and share nature of human enterprise It aims to adopt a balanced approach by considering both theories The result is a wide ranging detour that starts off with cognitive science then diverts into the domains of developmental and social psychology before ending up in territory that is normally occupied by historians and evolutionary biologists

Optimality in Translation Ali Darwish, 2008 Translation may be regarded as a response to a problem of communication usually between two language bound cultural entities The act itself is a multi dimensional and multi layered process involving in one consensual domain problem solving and decision making This book explores translation as a decision making process under constraints It examines these constraints and develops a three tier decision based translation model that can be used in self evaluation of translations and in translation quality assessment The model is anchored in optimality theory and regards translation as a temporary system of conflicting forces embodied by constraints yielding an optimal translation within these constraints

Writing and Motivation Suzanne Hidi, Pietro Boscolo, 2006-11-01 The aim of this volume is to bring together contributions from international research on writing and motivation. It not only addresses the basic question of how motivation to write can be fostered but also provides analyses of conceptual and theoretical issues at the intersection of the topics of motivation and writing. What emerges from the various chapters is that the motivational aspects of writing represent a rich, productive and partially still unexplored research field. This volume is a step in the direction of a more systematic analysis of the problems as well as an effort to present and compare various models, perspectives and methods of motivation and writing. It addresses the implications of writing instruction based on the 2 main approaches to writing research: cognitive and socio-cultural. It provides systematic analysis of the various models, perspectives and methods of motivation and writing. It brings together the international research available in this burgeoning field.

Improving Communication Suzanne Osborn, Michael T. Motley, 1999 This book is designed to improve communication in situations that many communicators find to be difficult. Virtually all of the information the authors present is aimed at increasing the potential for our communication encounters to have mutually satisfying and successful outcomes. Sometimes the information applies across the board to most any communication situation. Other times the information is more situation specific. The authors have especially tried to highlight communication situations that most young adults find to be particularly problematic.
