Kader, Rosa Sonya Rolle, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2004-01-01 Basic approaches to maintaining the safety and quality of horticultural produce are the same regardless of the market to which this produce is targeted This bulletin reviews the factors which contribute to quality and safety deterioration of horticultural produce and describes approaches to assuring the maintenance of quality and safety throughout the post harvest chain Specific examples are given to illustrate the economic implications of investing in and applying proper post harvest technologies Criteria for the assessment of post harvest needs the selection of post harvest technologies appropriate to the situation and context and for extending appropriate levels of post harvest information are also discussed Post-Harvest Physiology and Crop Preservation Morris Lieberman, 2012-12-06 Emphasis in agricultural research for many years has concentrated on crop production This emphasis has become more important in recent years with the realization that the population worldwide is outstripping the food supply There is however another side to increasing the availability of the food supply This simply involves preservation of the harvested crop for human consumption The losses incurred in harvesting handling transportation storage and marketing crops have become a greater problem as the distance from the farm to the ultimate consumer increases In the Western world where modern transportation storage facilities and marketing technology are widely used post harvest technology requires a large input of energy which increases costs considerably Therefore losses are more significant and the ability to provide fresh fruits and vegetables out of season at reasonable costs will depend on reduced post harvest losses throughout the marketing chain from the farm gate to the ultimate consumer The reduction in post harvest losses depends on proper use of current technology and further developments derived from a broad spectrum of scientific disciplines

Biochemistry plant physiology plant pathology horticulture agronomy physics engineering and agricultural economics all provide knowledge which has been useful and will be useful in the future for improving post harvest technology and crop preservation This volume records the Proceedings of the NATO Advanced Study Institute on Post Harvest Physiology and Crop Preservation held at Sounion Greece April 28 May 8 1981
