Sherman Alexie grew up with his four siblings on a reservation near Spokane, Washington, an experience he once described as the "origin" of "everything I do now, writing and otherwise." After attending high school in nearby Reardan, where he was the only Native American other than the school mascot, he earned a BA in American Studies from Washington State University and soon after published the first of over twelve collections of poetry, The Business of Fancydancing (1991). Named a New York Times Notable Book of the Year, it also earned high praise from the New York Times Book Review, which hailed its twenty-six-year-old author as "one of the major lyric voices of our time." Yet Alexie is perhaps better understood as an accomplished storyteller in verse and prose. His first collection of fiction, The Lone Ranger and Tonto Fistfight in Heaven (1993), received a PEN/Hemingway Award for Best First Book, which Alexie followed up over fifteen years later with a PEN/Faulkner Award for his fourth collection, War Dances (2010). In between have come novels—including Reverend Blues (1995), Flight (2007), and the National Book Award-winning young adult novel The Absolutely True Diary of a Part-Time Indian (2009)—as well as radio scripts and screenplays: Smoke Signals (1998) was featured at the Sundance Film Festival. A sometime stand-up comedian and four-time champion of the World Heavyweight Poetry Slam, he lives in Seattle, Washington, with his wife and two sons.

At 5:05 A.M., Patsy Cline fell loudly to pieces on William's clock radio.¹ He hit the snooze button, silencing lonesome Patsy, and dozed for fifteen more minutes before Donna Fargo bragged about being the happiest girl in the whole USA. William wondered what had ever happened to Donna Fargo,² whose birth name was the infinitely more interesting Yvonne Vaughn, and wondered why he knew Donna Fargo's birth name. Ah, he was the bemused and slightly embarrassed owner of a twenty-first-century American mind. His intellect was a big comfy couch stuffed with sacred and profane trivia. He knew the names of all nine of Elizabeth Taylor's husbands and could quote from memory the entire Declaration of Independence. William knew Donna Fargo's birth name because he wanted to know her birth name. He wanted to know all of the great big and tiny little American details. He didn't want to choose between Ernie Hemingway and the Spokane tribal elders, between Mia Hamm and Crazy Horse, between The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter and Chief Dan George. William wanted all of it. Hunger was his crime. As for dear Miss Fargo, William figured she probably played the Indian casino circuit along with the Righteous Brothers, Smokey Robinson, Eddie Money, Pat Benatar, RATT, REO Speedwagon, and
