Dave Cornthwaite has big plans: to complete 25 separate journeys, each over 1000 km long, as part of his Expedition 1,000 project. But he isn't using cars, buses or planes: all of the 25 forms of transport he uses aren't motorised. He also hopes to raise £1,000,000 for charity.

His journey began in 2006, when he cycled 3923 km across Australia on a dismount. It was the longest, slowest journey ever made. In 2011, he made a tandem bike with a friend from Newcastle, Canada, on a voyage to the US and then travelled for three months down the Atlantic coastline by surfboard, surfing and sailing. The original idea for the Expedition 1,000 project was to complete 25 journeys, each over 1000 km long, as part of his Expedition 1,000 project.

His eight journeys over about Europe on an elliptical bike, which looks like an exercise bike and uses no machine, were the first stands and pedals. On his last trip, Cornthwaite travelled Europe from Germany to the UK. But before he left, he let the public vote on what mode for the kind of transport he used and chose the one with the most votes.

One of Cornthwaite's most recent trips involved riding through China in the downy on a White Swan. However, it's a mile, 1000 km, to the west from Norway to Finland, it's a long way to go. Travelling over 1000 km at a time is a big challenge.

His journeys have not been without problems. Once he was caught up by a snowstorm in Montana in the US, where a snowstorm was about to hit. In his vehicle, which is the only one he has, he had to go with a snow machine, as well as a snow machine.

He promised to change his life from that point on. And he did.
