Digination Identity Organization And Public Life In The Age Of Small Digital Devices And Big Digital Domains

Robert C Macdougall:

Digination Robert C. MacDougall, 2012 The shift from orality to literacy that began with the invention of the phonetic alphabet and which went into high gear with Gutenberg's printing press more than 500 years ago helped make the modern world. Some commentators have argued that this shift from orality to literacy marked a much broader cultural shift of cataclysmic proportions. Today with everything from e-mail to blogs, iPods and podcasts through Google, Yahoo, eBay and with cutting edge smart phones we find ourselves developing relationships with these newest communication tools that aren't simply allowing us to communicate faster, farther and with more ease than ever before. We aren't just moving around ideas, data and information at unimaginable speed and scale. Our interminglings and fusions with digital communication technologies are also altering both individual and group consciousness in fundamental ways: how we form and sustain relationships, how we think and perceive what it means to see and to feel. We are remaking human identity once more and manufacturing a new kind of culture along the way. The processes bound up in our digination may well be consequential to the trajectory of human evolution. That time honored trope, the notion that technology is not the problem, rather it's how people use technology, that's the problem, is shown to be wanting. Highlighting Marshall McLuhan's tetrads or laws of media as a primary tool of analysis, R. C. MacDougall argues in line with other media ecologists that it's not so much how we use certain tools that matters; it's that we use them. More than any other technological form, perhaps communication technologies play particularly powerful and systemic roles in our culture or any culture for that matter. Late adopters and even abstainers are not exempt from the psychological, social and cultural effects and side effects of modern digital communication technology. While there are certainly varying degrees of immersion, that is to say while some of us live in the high rise downtown district, some at the city limits and still others out in the proverbial woods, we all live in Digination today.

Neuroscience and Media Michael Grabowski, 2014-12-05 This volume explores how advances in the fields of evolutionary neuroscience and cognitive psychology are informing media studies with a better understanding of how humans perceive, think and experience emotion within mediated environments. The book highlights interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary approaches to the production and reception of cinema, television, the Internet and other forms of mediated communication that take into account new understandings of how the embodied brain senses and interacts with its symbolic environment. Moreover, as popular media shape perceptions of the promises and limits of brain science, contributors also examine the representation of neuroscience and cognitive psychology within mediated culture.

The Digital Evolution of an American Identity C. Waite, 2013-01-17 The Digital Evolution of an American Identity details how the concept of American individualism is challenged by the digital revolution. As digital media alter our print dominant culture assumptions regarding the relationship of the individual to the larger community, become increasingly problematic. Current arguments regarding freedom of speech and confusion about what is meant by privacy illustrate the nature of the challenge C Waite defines individualism as the ways in which the American culture traditionally strives to balance the rights of the individual against the needs of the group Americans struggle to understand what it means to be responsible both for one's self and for the welfare of others They struggle with this not as an academic might but in concrete and specific cases often caught at cross purposes with conflicting goods This is a historic struggle intrinsic to the very fabric of America's democratic society as illustrated by its laws and customs The American democracy has supported a view of the person as an autonomous individual Yet that concept of American individualism no longer adequately captures the role of the self in the social world The digital environment challenges that autonomy by creating new avenues for speech and new forms of social networks Though the transition from a print based culture to the digital domain entails a global revolution American culture will suffer the consequences of that revolution more profoundly than other cultures because the concept of American individualism is foundational to its democratic way of life

The Digital Nexus Raphael Foshay, 2016-02-01 Over half a century ago in The Gutenberg Galaxy 1962 Marshall McLuhan noted that the overlap of traditional print and new electronic media like radio and television produced widespread upheaval in personal and public life Even without collision such co existence of technologies and awareness brings trauma and tension to every living person Our most ordinary and conventional attitudes seem suddenly twisted into gargoyles and grotesques Familiar institutions and associations seem at times menacing and malignant These multiple transformations which are the normal consequence of introducing new media into any society whatever need special study The trauma and tension in the daily lives of citizens as described here by McLuhan was only intensified by the arrival of digital media and the Web in the following decades The rapidly evolving digital realm held a powerful promise for creative and constructive good a promise so alluring that much of the inquiry into this new environment focused on its potential rather than its profound impact on every sphere of civic commercial and private life The totalizing scope of the combined effects of computerization and the worldwide network are the subject of the essays in The Digital Nexus a volume that responds to McLuhan s request for a special study of the tsunami like transformation of the communication landscape These critical excursions provide analysis of and insight into the way new media technologies change the workings of social engagement for personal expression social interaction and political engagement The contributors investigate the terms and conditions under which our digital society is unfolding and provide compelling arguments for the need to develop an accurate grasp of the architecture of the Web and the challenges that ubiquitous connectivity undoubtedly delivers to both public and private life Contributions by Ian Angus Maria Bakardjieva Daryl Campbell Sharone Daniel Andrew Feenberg Raphael Foshay Carolyn Guertin David J Gunkel Bob Hanke Leslie Lindballe Mark McCutcheon Roman Onufrijchuk Josipa G Petruni Peter J Smith Lorna Stefanick Karen Wall
