Transforming Curriculum Through Teacher-Learner Partnerships Nair, Pradeep, Keppell, Michael James, Lim, Chee Leong, Mari, TamilSalvi, Hassan, Nurhanim, 2020-12-11 Empowering learners for life requires a fundamental shift in higher education curriculum design New priorities pedagogies technologies spaces and assessment strategies are required to enable learners to take ownership of their learning Student centeredness concepts are still prescriptive in nature as most decisions on curriculum assessment teaching and learning approaches are still teacher centric Teachers are developing student centered learning environments without the involvement of the learners in the planning decision making and or design process In addition some lecturers are still practicing the traditional approaches of content delivery and conventional assessment methods rather than experimenting with innovative practices suited for student centered approaches Therefore there is an ongoing need for research focused on the importance and effectiveness of a paradigm shift in education that involves student teacher partnerships fueled by innovative teaching and learning designs where students take an active role and contribute as partners in learning Transforming Curriculum Through Teacher Learner Partnerships captures experiences and evidence among teachers in exploring the possibility of active student participation in curriculum design delivery and assessment through teacher learner partnership The chapters address issues of teacher learner partnerships in designing the learning environment and how student centered methods create resilient adaptable and future capable learners While highlighting topics within this scope such as learner autonomy learning performance self efficacy and teaching pedagogy this book is ideally intended for teachers administrators teacher educators practitioners stakeholders researchers academicians and students interested in issues related to the teacher learner partnership

Design and Communication Laura Scherling,Andrew DeRosa,2020-02-20 This timely collection brings together critical analytic historical and practical studies to address what ethics means in the practice of design Designers face the same challenges as everyone else in the complex conditions of contemporary cultural life choices about consumption waste exploitation ecological damage and political problems built into the supply chains on which the global systems of inequity currently balance precariously But designers face the additional dilemma that their paid work is often entangled with promoting the same systems such critical approaches seek to redress how to reconcile this contradiction among others in seeking to chart an ethical course of action while still functioning effectively in the world Ethics in Design and Communication acknowledges the complexity of this subject matter while also demonstrating that in the ongoing struggle towards an equitable and sustainable world the talents of design and critical thought are essential Featured case studies include graphic design internships today the dark web and media coverage of the 2016 US presidential election The fact that within this book such a wide array of practitioners scholars critics and professionals commit to addressing current injustices is already a positive sign Nonetheless it is essential that we guard against confusing the coercive force of moral imperatives with ethical deliberation when conceiving a foundation for action Multimodality in Architecture Ju Hyun Lee,Michael J. Ostwald,Mi Jeong Kim,2024-01-12 This book examines multimodality in architecture and its impacts on collaborative technical and educational processes or systems Multimodality is becoming increasingly critical in contemporary architectural practice and education Creative design teams face new challenges when they embrace new modes of communication technology and knowledge development processes From diverse online modes of communication to shared digital environments generative AI and advanced hardware solutions new modes of information creation sharing and application are changing the ways architects and designers work The book presents new research which empowers international researchers and designers to work more effectively in a diverse range of digital environments Whether the readers are architects teachers students or scholars this book provides critical insights and practical tools for understanding and optimising processes in architecture and design

Handbook of Research in Educational Communications and Technology M. J. Bishop, Elizabeth Boling, Jan Elen, Vanessa Svihla, 2020-09-21 The 5th edition of the prestigious AECT Handbook continues previous efforts to reach outside the traditional instructional design and technology community to the learning sciences and computer information systems communities toward developing a conceptualization of the field However given the pervasive and increasingly complex role technology now plays in education since the 1st edition of the Handbook in 1996 the editors have reorganized the research chapters in this edition to focus on the learning problems we are trying to solve with educational technologies rather than to focus on the things we are using to solve those problems Additionally for the first time this edition of the Handbook reflects our field's growing understanding of the importance of design scholarship to inform practice by including design case chapters These changes for this edition of the Handbook are intended to bring educational technology research into the broader framework of educational research by elaborating on the role instructional design and technology plays as a scholarly discipline in addressing education's increasingly complex issues Provides comprehensive reviews of new developments in educational technology research and design practice Includes concrete examples to guide future research and practice in the ways emerging technologies can be used to solve educational problems Contains extensive references furnished to guide readers to the most recent research and design practice in the field of instructional design and technology
