Beylich,John C. Dixon,Zbigniew Zwoliński,2016-07-07 Amplified climate change and ecological sensitivity of polar and cold climate environments are key global environment issues Understanding how projected climate change will alter surface environments in these regions is only possible when present day source to sink fluxes can be quantified The book provides the first global synthesis and integrated analysis of environmental drivers and quantitative rates of solute and sedimentary fluxes in cold environments and the likely impact of projected climate change The focus on largely undisturbed cold environments allows ongoing climate change effects to be detected and moreover distinguished from anthropogenic impacts A novel approach for co ordinated and integrative process geomorphic research is introduced to enable better comparison between studies This highly topical and multidisciplinary book which includes case studies covering Arctic Antarctic and alpine environments will be of interest to graduate students and researchers in the fields of geomorphology sedimentology and global environmental change *Proceedings for the ... Maher,2014-10-08 In Human Ecodynamics in the North Atlantic A Collaborative Model of Humans and Nature through Space and Time Ramona Harrison and Ruth A Maher have compiled a series of separate research projects conducted across the North Atlantic region that each contribute greatly to anthropological archaeology This book assembles a regional model through which the reader is presented with a vivid and detailed image of the climatic events and cultures which have occupied these seas and lands for roughly a 5000 year period It provides a model of adaptability resilience and sustainability that can be applied globally First visiting the Northern Isles of Scotland in the Orkney Islands the reader is taken through the archaeology from the Neolithic Period through World War II in the face of sea level rise and rapidly eroding coastlines The Shetland Islands then reveal a deep time study of one large scale Iron Age excavation On to the northern coasts of Norway where information about late medieval maritime peoples is explained Iceland explores human environment interaction and implications of climate change presented from the Viking Age through the Early Modern Era Rounding out the North Atlantic Region is Greenland which sheds light on the Norse in the late Viking Age and the Middle Ages Hårdt Fedt Hårdt 1.G

landscape be perceived and understood Since the Bronze Age the landscape has been transformed by shore displacement but largely due to misunderstanding and certain ideas about the character of Bronze Age society rock art research in Tanum has drawn much of its inspiration from the present agrarian landscape This perception of the landscape has not been a major issue This volume republished from the GOTAC Serie B Gothenburg Archaeological thesis 49 aims to shed light on the process of shore displacement and its social and cognitive implications for the interpretation of rock art in the prehistoric landscape The findings clearly show that in the Bronze Age the majority of rock art sites in Bohuslän had a very close spatial connection to the sea Much rock art analysis focuses on the contemplative observer The more direct activities related to rock art are seldom fully considered Here the basic conditions for the production of rock art social theory and approaches to image communication symbolism and social action are discussed and related to palpable social forms of the reading of rock art The general location and content of the Bronze Age remains indicate a tendency towards the maritime realm which seems to have included both socio ritual and socio economic matters of production and consumption and that Bronze Age groups in Bohuslän were highly active and mobile The numerous configurations of ship images on the rocks could indicate a general transition or drift towards the maritime realm Marking or manifesting such transitions in some way may have been important and it is tempting to perceive the rock art as traces of such transitions or positions in the landscape All this points to a maritime understanding of Bronze Age rock art in northern Bohuslän
