

Chicago Manual of Style 17th Edition

This guide provides examples of documenting material according to the Chicago Manual of Style. The Chicago style of documentation is used in some humanities and social sciences disciplines, including History, Classics and Anthropology. Instead of in-text citations, the Chicago style uses footnotes¹ or endnotes² and a Bibliography which lists all of the cited references at the end of the document. The notes and bibliographic citations are not formatted the same, and both are required.

Copies of The Chicago Manual of Style, 17th ed. are available at 2253.069.2017 and online at <http://bit.ly/smcsmos>.

bounds of the Federal Republic arose new forms of queer fascism as well as their multiple antiracist contestations Both unsettled the appeals to national belonging or homonationalism on which many white queer activists based their claims Thus the story of the making of homonationalism is also the story of its unmaking The Color of Desire explains how the importance of racism to queer politics cannot and should not be understood without also attending to antiracism Actors worked across different groups making it difficult to chart separable political trajectories At the same time antiracist activists also used the fractures and openings in groups that were heavily invested in the logics of whiteness to formulate new antiracist organizations and albeit in constrained ways shifted queer politics more generally
