Krauss, 2018-09-05 The aftermath of Japan s 1945 military defeat left its public institutions in a state of deep crisis virtually every major source of state legitimacy was seriously damaged or wholly remade by the postwar occupation. Between 1960 and 1990 however these institutions renewed their strength taking on legitimacy that erased virtually all traces of their postwar instability. How did this transformation come about? This is the question Ellis S. Krauss ponders in Broadcasting Politics in Japan; his answer focuses on the role played by the Japanese mass media and in particular by Japan's national broadcaster NHK. Since the 1960s television has been a fixture of the Japanese household and NHK's TV news has until very recently been the dominant and most trusted source of political information for the Japanese citizen. NHK's news style is distinctive among the broadcasting systems of industrialized countries; it emphasizes facts over interpretation and gives unusual priority to coverage of the national bureaucracy. Krauss argues that this approach is not simply a reflection of Japanese culture but a result of the organization and processes of NHK and their relationship with the state. These factors had profound consequences for the state's postwar re-legitimation while the commercial networks' recent challenge to NHK has helped engender the wave of cynicism currently faced by the state. Krauss guides the reader through the complex interactions among politics, media organizations and Japanese journalism to demonstrate how NHK television news became a shaper of Japan's political world rather than simply a lens through which to view it. Advanced Placement English Gary A. Olson, Elizabeth Metzger, Evelyn Ashton-Jones, 1989 Language Curriculum Design John Macalister, I.S.P. Nation, 2009-09-10 Crystal clear and comprehensive yet concise this text describes the steps involved in the curriculum design process; elaborates and justifies these steps and provides opportunities for practicing and applying them. The description of the steps is done at a general level so that they can be applied in a wide range of particular circumstances. The process comes to life through plentiful examples of actual applications of the steps. Each chapter includes examples from the author's experience and from published research tasks that encourage readers to relate the steps to their own experience, case studies and suggestions for further reading that put readers in touch with others' experience. Curriculum or course design is largely a how-to-do-it activity that involves the integration of knowledge from many of the areas in the field of Applied Linguistics such as language acquisition, research, teaching methodology, assessment, language description and materials production. Combining sound research theory with state-of-the-art practice Language Curriculum Design is widely applicable for ESL/EFL language education courses around the world. The Education Index, 1986 Bibliographies and Literature of Agriculture, 1978 Journal of Economic Literature, 1985 The BRITS Index: Title index British Theses Service, 1989 Copyright, 1985 Objective Measurement Mark R. Wilson, 1992 The measurement practice section illustrates the application of objective measurement methods to personality psychology, a sociological study of school environment, personnel management, pain research, motor performance and curriculum development. It emphasizes practice over theory, showing how measurement practice contributes valuable perspectives on substantive theory. The measurement theory section describes the development of new measurement models that extend objective measurement into learning.

contexts rank ordered data and multidimensional profiles composed of subtests These are complemented by a study of the use of objective measurement to examine the construct validity of items and an exploration of the impact of test anxiety and item order on measurements The final section examines recent developments in mathematical programming techniques applied to test assembly parameter estimation and generalizability theory
