Multimodality and Multilingualism Steph Ainsworth,Dominic Griffiths,Gee Macrory,Kate Pahl,2023-03-01 This book explores the ways in which multimodality and multilingualism as areas of study intersect and provides empirical examples of how this looks in practice from a wide range of settings The chapters include visual as well as linguistic descriptions of practice and provide an accessible introduction to multimodality and multilingualism for a readership from undergraduate students to researchers The book argues that the everyday practices of multilingual communities are multimodal in nature and that by working at the intersection of multilingualism and multimodality we may be able to make fruitful advances in multiple areas of applied linguistics and properly appreciate the actual human complexities of communication China's Asian Dream Tom Miller,2019-07-15 China Napoleon once remarked is a sleeping lion Let her sleep for when she wakes she will shake the world In 2014 President Xi Jinping triumphantly declared that the lion had awoken From holding its ground in trade wars with the US to presenting itself as a world leader in the fight against climate change a newly confident China is flexing its economic muscles for strategic ends With the Belt and Road initiative billed as a new Silk Road for the 21st Century China is set to extend its influence throughout Eurasia and across the South China Sea and the Indian Ocean But with the Chinese and US militaries also vying over the Pacific does this newfound confidence put China on a collision course with the US Combining a geopolitical overview with on the ground reportage from a dozen countries this new edition of China's Asian Dream engages with the most recent developments in the ongoing story of China's ascendancy and offers new insights into what the rise of China means not only for Asia but for the world Reducing the Mortality Gap in People with Severe Mental Disorders: the Role of Lifestyle Psychosocial Interventions Andrea Fiorillo, Maurizio Pompili, Mario Luciano, Norman Sartorius, 2019-10-15 Patients with severe mental disorders SMD including major depression bipolar disorder schizophrenia and related spectrum disorders have a reduced life expectancy of 10-25 years compared with the general population. This life expectancy gap is mainly due to the co-occurrence of many physical diseases such as hypertension, coronary heart disease, stroke, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, tuberculosis, hepatitis, and HIV. Factors contributing to the reduced life expectancy can be grouped into three main categories: a) factors related to the patient, b) factors related to clinicians, and c) factors related to the health system. As regards the first group, patients with SMD often adopt unhealthy lifestyle behaviors including heavy smoking, reduced physical activity, sedentary behaviors, poor diet, and alcohol or drug abuse, and are reluctant to seek physical care with GPs and other medical specialists. Increasing the levels of physical activity, improving dietary patterns, and reducing smoking habits of people with severe mental disorders represent a global health challenge and a public health priority. Until now, attempts made to reduce this mortality gap have acted at three different levels: health system level, physician level, and patient level. The third-level interventions include electronic alerts through smartphones and web-based platforms, intensive case management, promotion of healthy habits, complex psychosocial interventions. Several population-based studies have shown that lifestyle behaviors are amenable to change through the adoption of specific psychosocial interventions. However, most clinical guidelines, although emphasizing the importance of health monitoring and regular check-ups for patients with severe mental illnesses, do not make specific recommendations on the provision of lifestyle interventions. These lifestyle-oriented interventions, consisting of behavioral, educational, and psychological components, have been conducted mainly in research settings and have shown a good impact on patients' physical health. Despite this, their feasibility in routine settings has not been tested yet. It seems to be clinically and ethically relevant to develop, validate, and carry out interventions to improve the lifestyle behaviors of patients with severe mental disorders to reduce the presence of comorbidities and to improve their life expectancy. In this Research Topic, we will summarize the available knowledge of the efficacy and effectiveness of psychosocial interventions aimed at improving healthy lifestyle behaviors and promoting the physical health of patients with severe mental disorders. Land Grabs in a Green African Economy Nhamo, Godwell, Chekwoti, Caiphas, 2014-12-10 This book focuses on profiling, from both literature-based and primary research points of orientation, instances of land grabs and/or acquisitions, with a focus on the implications of land grabs for trade, investment, and development policy in Africa under the global green economy transition agenda. In many instances, case studies and examples paint a picture that could be of use to policy makers. Overall, the book advocates a 'satisfy-satisfy' orientation when land deals are made, as well as total transparency from key actors, building grassroots negotiation capacity and awareness. To illustrate some of the emerging issues in terms of land grabs, acquisition, and their implications for trade, investment, and development policies, the sixth Trade Policy Training Centre in Africa trapca conference took place in Arusha Tanzania on 24 and 25 November 2011 The conference had two objectives 1 to come up with concrete policy interventions and recommendations that would harness foreign investment in land on the continent and 2 to publish this edited book of selected papers presented at the conference that met the rigorous specifications laid down by the editors and publishers One of the major revelations to emerge from the Conference was that there is no vacant land in Africa In addition participants took the view that land deals in Africa needed to be done on a satisfy satisfy rather than a win win win basis This book is jointly published by trapca and the Africa Institute of South Africa AISA Catalog of the Gerald K. Tree Plantation Extractivism in Chile Alejandro Mora-Motta, 2024-03-29 This book examines how extractivism transforms territories and affects the well being of rural people drawing on in depth fieldwork conducted on tree plantations in Chile The book argues that pine and eucalyptus monoculture plantations in southern Chile are a form of extractivism representing a mode of nature appropriation that captures large amounts of natural resources to produce wooden based raw materials with little processing and an export oriented focus The book discusses the nexus of extractivism territorial transformations well being and emerging resistances using a participatory action research methodological approach in the Region of Los R os southern Chile The findings show how the configuration of an extractivist logging enclave generated a substantial and irrevocable reordering of human nature relations resulting in the territorial and ontological occupation of rural places that disrupted the fundamental human needs of peasants and indigenous people The book maintains that Chile s green growth development approach does not challenge the consolidated tree plantation enclave controlled by large multinationals Instead green growth legitimises the extractivist logic The book draws parallels with other countries and regions to contribute to wider debates surrounding these topics This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of the extractive industries development studies political ecology and natural resource governance

Current Problems in the Protection of Human Rights Katja S Ziegler, Peter M Huber, 2013-03-01 While the legal systems of the United Kingdom and Germany differ in essential respects the current process of constitutionalisation is well recognised on both sides of the Channel Constitutionalisation manifests itself in the evolution of a constitution and the influence of existing constitutional principles on the ordinary law Human rights law provides one of the best examples of this process and the aim of this book is to provide a comparative UK German perspective on recent developments First it addresses human rights questions which arise in both jurisdictions in a similar way such as the tension between liberty and security absolute rights such as human dignity and the prohibition of torture and the question how conflicts between human rights are to be resolved and conceptualised A second theme considers the impact of human rights on different areas of law in particular administrative law criminal law labour law and private law generally Finally a third theme focuses on the intersection of national supra and international human rights law in particular after the entry into force of the EU Charter on Fundamental Rights The book thus reveals convergent and divergent answers to similar problems examines differences in the impact of human rights on the legal systems under consideration and traces parallel and distinct debates over and sensitivities about human rights as well as sensitivities that arise in multi layer situations in the UK and Germany
