Brown,2012-01-01 Abbe Brown s new work provides a welcome and extremely valuable addition of the human rights dimension to the long standing conflict over essential technologies between intellectual property and competition law Steven Anderman University of Essex UK and University of Stockholm Sweden Much has been written on the flexibilities available within the intellectual property system to address development and social needs This book goes a step further it explores how greater access to essential technologies can be ensured through human rights and competition law Although the analysis is focused on UK and the European Union the book provides valuable insights for assessing the situation in other jurisdictions The author suggests an innovative approach for courts and legislators to overcome in the light of public interest considerations the limits imposed by intellectual property rights This book is a much welcomed contribution to academic and policy debates on the subject Carlos M Correa University of Buenos Aires Argentina Intellectual property interacts or clashes with human rights and competition law The refreshing bit about this book is that a detailed practical approach to the inevitable balancing act is proposed Abbe Brown explains how a human rights approach is the cornerstone of such a balancing approach and how positive results can be achieved towards unblocking essential technologies And it can be done in the existing international legal framework even if the latter could be improved Well researched challenging and interesting reading Paul Torremans University of Nottingham UK Abbe Brown s study starts from the assumption that IP right owners particularly those of innovative technologies dispose of a disproportionate strong legal position in relation to that of competitors and customers which is detrimental to society at large Brown investigates how the power of the IP right owners can be limited by applying existing human rights law and competition law To that aim it is suggested to widen the legal landscape and to develop a more tripartite substantive approach to IP law human rights law and competition law Brown s study offers a very welcome new contribution to the literature on the functioning of IP law by stressing the joint role which competition law and human rights law can play in this respect F Willem Grosheide Utrecht University and Attorney at law Van Doorne Amsterdam The Netherlands This detailed book explores the relationship between intellectual property competition and human rights It considers the extent to which they can and must be combined by decision makers and how this approach can foster innovation in key areas for society such as pharmaceutical drugs communications software and technology to combat climate change The author argues that these three legal fields are strongly interrelated and that they can be used to identify essential technologies She demonstrates that in some cases combining the fields can deliver new bases for wider access to be provided to technologies The solutions developed are strongly based on existing laws with a focus on the UK and the EU and the structures of existing forms of dispute resolution including the European Court of Human Rights and the dispute settlement bodies of the World Trade Organisation The final chapters also suggest opportunities for further engagement at international policy and activist level new approaches to IP and its treaties and wider adoption of the proposals This timely book will appeal to academics and practitioners in IP competition and human rights as well as innovation related industry groups and access to knowledge health and environment activists
