MIDTERM 1: EVOLUTION

The Lampsilis mussels that evolved the fish lures are not ‘aware’ that they are attracting fish, so how could this evolve in a gradual way? Come up with a list of up to 5 evolutionary steps that could help explain this.

- A mussel developed a mutation that caused it to have fish lures
- Mussels with fish lures attract more fish than those without them
- Mussels with fish lures have better fitness than mussels without fish lures, meaning that they are more likely to survive and reproduce, contributing more to the gene pool in the next generation
- In the next generation, there are more mussels with fish lures than in the last
- The cycle continues and results in more and more mussels with fish lures in each generation

Define evolution in two ways: in the broadest sense and at the population-level

- Broad: The concept that organisms living on Earth today are the modified descendants of common ancestors; macroevolution
- Population-Level: A change in allele (gene) frequency within a population; microevolution
