Garrett K. Chan, 2005 Emergency departments EDs are places of high stress are fast paced and are generally a place of transition in the hospital Patients do not usually stay in the ED and are often transferred to an inpatient unit transferred to another hospital for a higher level of care or discharged home Even though we confront transition in this rescue area ED clinicians may not be cognizant of the types of death that they attend The closing of a person's life is the end of a biography and the person may not ever leave the ED The purpose of this interpretive study is to describe the lived experience of ED clinicians clinical and ethical decision making distress and resolution of actual or potential dying and resuscitative events in an effort to unravel the perceived personal ethical cultural environmental and clinical factors that influence the care of dying ED patients This interpretive project aims at making explicit caring practices of clinicians and seeking common meaning in ED end of life care This dissertation is a thick description of the ED culture and characteristics a theoretical examination of end of life models a philosophical investigation of how ED clinicians understand and recognize patients are dying and how patients approach death and die in the ED End of life research has not focused on end of life in the ED This is a new frontier to be explored Chapter Two is a description of ED culture and characteristics with a review critique and theoretical examination of the applicability of current end of life models to ED care Current end of life models that are based on chronic care or oncology models are difficult to apply in the ED setting The limitations of these models are that they do not allow for the uncertainty of prognosis or for mortality in sudden illness or injury do not take in account unpredictability of the course of treatments and cannot accommodate the suddenness of presentation of illness or injury or the sudden change in patient condition Chapter Three is a philosophical examination of end of life care in the ED in an effort to help us understand how core medical and nursing values are embodied as care practices and ethical comportment This chapter integrates Aristotle and other philosophers notions of phronesis and praxis with Merleau Ponty's ontological notions of intentional arc and maximum grip in the context of the culture and practices at the end of life in the emergency department setting Chapter Four is a review of phenomenology as a research methodology Chapter Five is the dissertation study that describes the seven trajectories of how patients approach death and die in the ED These seven trajectories are 1 dead on arrival 2 resuscitation in the field resuscitative efforts in the ED died in the ED 3 resuscitation in the field resuscitative efforts in the ED resuscitated and admitted to the hospital 4 terminally ill comes to the ED 5 frail hovering near death 6 arrives at the ED alive then arrests dies suddenly in the ED and 7 potentially preventable death by omission or commission
