"Management and the Worker"

People are social beings, motivated by social needs.
A sense of identity is derived from inter-personal relationships.
Workers are more receptive to social forces of peer groups than monetary incentives and management controls.
Workers respond positively to attention from management, co-workers and customers.
The psychological needs of individuals significantly impact group performance.

Scientific Management Frederick Winslow Taylor, 2004-06-01 This volume comprises three works originally published separately as Shop Management 1903 The Principles of Scientific Management 1911 and Testimony Before the Special House Committee 1912 Taylor aimed at reducing conflict between managers and workers by using scientific thought to develop new principles and mechanisms of management In contrast to ideas prevalent at the time Taylor maintained that the workers output could be increased by standardizing tasks and working conditions with high pay for success and loss in case of failure Scientific Management controversially suggested that almost every act of the worker would have to be preceded by one or more preparatory acts of management thus separating the planning of an act from its execution
