Die Inschriften Der Stadt Trier Bis 1500 Die Deutschen Inschriften Heidelberger Reihe:

Die Inschriften der Stadt Trier Rüdiger Fuchs, 2006 Der erste Band der Trierer Inschriften enthält etwa 350 Katalognummern mit über 1000 einzelnen Inschriften Die kommentierte Sammlung reicht von einem sehr dichten Bestand frühmittelalterlicher Grabinschriften bis zu den ersten Vertretern der neuen Zeit An den überwiegend lateinisch formulierten Grabinschriften zeigen sich die sprachlichen und gedanklichen Veränderungen über acht Jahrhunderte Schwerpunkte bilden hier die dichten Textreihen für die Erzbischofe die Äbte der Benediktinerklöster und den Stiftsklerus Besondere Aufmerksamkeit verdienen die Schatzkunst der Egbert Zeit und der Frühgotik die grösstenteils verlorene oder fragmentarische Kirchengenausstattung von St Maximin sowie grosse Zyklen von Graffiti und Malereien Wie kein anderer Bestand reflektieren die Trierer Inschriften die Sicht des Mittelalters auf die antike Vergangenheit der Stadt und ihrer Kirchen Einen grossen Anteil haben auch die teilweise in der Antike verankerten Heiltümer Wetzer und Welte's Kirchenlexikon: Trier bis Zwingli. - 1901 Heinrich Joseph Wetzer, Benedict Welte, 1901 Das Stift St. Simeon in Trier Franz-Josef Heyen, 2002 Essays on the Early Franks Ernst Taayke, 2003 Around the year 500 A D king Clovis expanded his territory situated near the French Belgian border to an area reaching from beyond the Pyrenees to well into Germany Towards the end of the 20th century this rise of the Franks Clovis tribe was celebrated extensively From texts written at that occasion one might get the impression that the destiny of present day Europe was decided 1500 years ago by a group of West Germanic tribes Without the Franks there would have been no modern France or Germany Reading more closely however one involuntarily recalls the famous metaphor from Chaos theory in which the butterfly's delicate fluttering eventually causes a hurricane Similarly the Frankish contribution to the fall of the Roman Empire was in the beginning rather modest Indeed in the 3rd and 4th century AD the Franks were in Roman eyes only an annoying and compared with the Goths Huns or Vandals insignificant people Viewed academically had there been no Clovis the Franks would not have risen above the level of a footnote in history for what do we know of their actions in the two centuries before his appearance Led by King Clovis and with thanks to Gregory of Tours we move from ignorance to history whereas Clovis's predecessors have never moved out of the shadows What do we know for instance of Meroving the famous dynasty's nomenclator The main ingredient in our desire to organize a workshop was curiosity about the Franks mysterious origins What people belonged to this tribe in the making What caused them to leave their homelands And what was their desired destination Archaeologically we are certainly seeing some progress in our knowledge of the early Franks But what about their history or onomastics The event organised by the Groningen Institute of Archaeology was to be held in the province of the same name with the small borg of Rusthoven at Wirdum our first and only choice as venue One does not automatically associate the Franks with the Groningen area On second thoughts however the idea is not so strange after all In the 3rd century when the Germanic attacks on the Roman frontier started the main participants were presumably inhabitants of the coastal area Frisians and Chauki Only in the 4th century did the name of the Franks move to and become permanently associated with people in the interior like the Chamavi or the Bructeri The intention was to assemble an international but small gathering where participants could be given an opportunity to raise their voices and facilitate discussion The geographical focus would be on the Netherlands and its immediate surroundings while the upper time limit was initially set by the reign of Clovis March 2000 some 30 archaeologists historians onomasiologists and others from the United Kingdom Germany France Belgium and the Netherlands found their way to Wirdum Eight papers were read and commented on To our delight in addition to the texts delivered this volume contains four more papers Internationale germanistische Bibliographie ,1981 Die Deutschen Inschriften

Gertrud Mras,Renate Kohn,2006 The study of medieval and early modern inscriptions a young research field compared to classical epigraphy aims not only at the precise editing of these multifaceted historical and cultural sources but also sees itself as a new history science connected to many other cultural history fields The volume presents 15 papers that were held at an international conference by participants from Germany Austria France Italy the Czech Republic and Poland and provides the first detailed survey of early modern inscriptions with respect to their various functions designs and messages Although the majority of epigraphic monuments in most parts of Europe date from the early modern period they have not been adequately studied and thus this publication answers a desideratum In addition to palaeography the close analysis of the design and development of script and writing seen in the interdependence of handwriting printing and epigraphic writing other topics include inscriptions as sources for the history of culture mentality religions and art as well as the connection between inscriptions and the languages of their texts Epigraphik 2000 ,2006 Kölnisches Stadtmuseum
