Asian Religions ,1982 My Tibetan Childhood Naktsang Nulo, 2014-11-05 In My Tibetan Childhood Naktsang Nulo recalls his life in Tibet s Amdo region during the 1950s From the perspective of himself at age ten he describes his upbringing as a nomad on Tibet s eastern plateau He depicts pilgrimages to monasteries including a 1500 mile horseback expedition his family made to and from Lhasa A year or so later they attempted that same journey as they fled from advancing Chinese troops Naktsang s father joined and was killed in the little known 1958 Amdo rebellion against the Chinese People s Liberation Army the armed branch of the Chinese Communist Party During the next year the author and his brother were imprisoned in a camp where after the onset of famine very few children survived The real significance of this episodic narrative is the way it shows through the eyes of a child the suppressed histories of China s invasion of Tibet The author s matter of fact accounts cast the atrocities that he relays in stark relief Remarkably Naktsang lived to tell his tale His book was published in 2007 in China where it was a bestseller before the Chinese government banned it in 2010 It is the most reprinted modern Tibetan literary work This translation makes a fascinating if painful period of modern Tibetan history accessible in English

Material Culture and Asian Religions Benjamin Fleming, Richard Mann, 2014-03-26 Traditionally research on the history of Asian religions has been marked by a bias for literary evidence privileging canonical texts penned in classical languages Not only has a focus on literary evidence shaped the dominant narratives about the religious histories of Asia in both scholarship and popular culture but it has contributed to the tendency to study different religious traditions in relative isolation from one another Today moreover historical work is often based on modern textual editions and increasingly on electronic databases What may be lost in the process is the visceral sense of the text as artifact as a material object that formed part of a broader material culture in which the boundaries between religious traditions were sometimes more fluid than canonical literature might suggest This volume brings together specialists in a variety of Asian cultures to discuss the methodological challenges involved in integrating material evidence for the reconstruction of the religious histories of South Southeast Central and East Asia By means of specific test cases the volume explores the importance of considering material and literary evidence in concert What untold stories do these sources help us to recover How might they push us to reevaluate historical narratives traditionally told from literary sources By addressing these questions from the perspectives of different subfields and religious traditions contributors map out the challenges involved in interpreting different types of data assessing the problems of interpretation distinct to specific types of material evidence e g coins temple art manuscripts donative inscriptions and considering the issues raised by the different patterns in the preservation of such evidence in different locales Special attention is paid to newly discovered and neglected sources to our evidence for trade migration and inter regional cultural exchange and to geographical locales that served as contact zones connecting cultures In addition the chapters in this volume represent the rich range of religious traditions across Asia

including Hinduism Buddhism Taoism Shinto and Chinese religions as well as Islam and eastern Christianities Asian Religions in America Thomas A. Tweed, Stephen R. Prothero, 1999 This book presents the American encounter with Asian religions through a wide range of documents written and visual from elite and popular culture dating from 1788 to the present Coverage of Buddhism Hinduism and Islam predominate through selectoins from other religions are included Daoism Confusianism Shinto Sikhism The entries are divided into four chronological periods The first section traces the initial attempts to map the earliest contracts up to 1840 the second section from 1840 to 1924 presents the first real passages from east to west and west to east the third from 1924 to 1965 sketches a drifting period when immigration has stopped and Euro American interest in Asian religions was minimal and the final section which takes us to the present covers a time when the encounter intensifies greatly Asia's Environmental Movements in Comparative Perspective Alvin Y. So, Lily Xiao Hong Lee, 2020-10-07 Exploring one of the most dynamic and contested regions of the world this series includes works on political economic cultural and social changes in modern and contemporary Asia and the Pacific Asian Religions, Technology and Science Allan Reynell, 2017-06 The relationship between science religion and culture has been a subject of profound interest for philosophers scientists theologians and cultural historians for centuries During the last century and part of the one before it was widely held that there was an irreconcilable conflict between knowledge and belief The opinion prevailed among advanced minds that it was time that belief should be replaced increasingly by knowledge belief that did not itself rest on knowledge was superstition and as such had to be opposed According to this conception the sole function of education was to open the way to thinking and knowing and the school as the outstanding organ for the people s education must serve that end exclusively Scientific method can teach us nothing else beyond how facts are related to and conditioned by each other The aspiration toward such objective knowledge belongs to the highest of which man is capable Yet it is equally clear that knowledge of what is does not open the door directly to what should be One can have the clearest and most complete knowledge of what is and yet not be able to deduct from that what should be the goal of our human aspirations Perhaps there are religious impulses underlying the drive of technology which has characterized modernity religious impulses which might affect secular atheists too if they are not self aware enough to notice what s going on Such impulses might prevent technology and religion from being incompatible Possibly technology itself is becoming religious on its own thus also eliminating incompatibilities Asian Religions Technology and Science brings together the historical and contemporary perspectives of the relationship between religion technology and science with a focus in Asian context The compilation provides an examination of the use of modern scientific concepts in the theologies of new religious organisations and challenges the traditional philosophies of space by scientific ideas It aims at exploring the unique relationship between science religion and culture and it welcomes submissions from all perspectives and religious traditions including Christianity Judaism Islam Buddhism Hinduism Taoism secularism humanism and naturalism Special focus is given to the various ways modern science including the disciplines of physics cosmology biology psychology neuroscience mathematics sociology and anthropology support oppose inform or are informed by religious theological and cultural perspectives Further focus is given to perspectives on science religion and culture from different geographical regions cultures religions and historical epochs This book will be an important tool to the studies of Asian Religion Science and Technology and Religion and Philosophy
