answer to the over present literature of the oppressing European literary traditions The second one is characterized by a set of theoretical concerns and reading strategies Rather than merely writing back a term introduced by Bill Ashcroft Gareth Griffiths and Helen Tiffin this approach suggests that cultural differences are constructed by replacing the strong binary opposition us versus the other with concepts of hybridity in betweenness and border thinking see Lie 2005 139 140 The early work of Mexican author Carlos Fuentes 1928 can be seen in an intermediate position between these two concepts Even though the theme of otherness and opposition is very present in his work as can be seen in La frontera de cristal 1995 and his early novel Aura 1962 his writing is full of intertextual references that show his appreciation for both European and Latin American literary tradition As part of the Boom movement in Latin American literature he also uses supernatural and gothic elements that sometimes make it hard or even impossible to distinguish between reality and illusion According to this aesthetic unreal things are treated as if realistic and mundane and mundane things as if unreal Plots while often based on real experiences incorporate strange fantastic and legendary elements mythical peoples speculative settings and characters who while plausible could also be unreal and combine the true the imaginary and the nonexistent in such a way that they are difficult to separate Pope 1996 229 Fuentes novel Aura is an Aura Carlos Fuentes,2023 Ordinary Enchantments Wendy B. Faris,2004 Ordinary Enchantments investigates magical realism as the most important trend in contemporary international fiction defines its characteristics and narrative techniques and proposes a new theory to explain its significance In the most comprehensive critical treatment of this literary mode to date Wendy B Faris discusses a rich array of examples from magical realist novels around the world including the work not only of Latin American writers like Gabriel Garcia Marquez but also of authors like Salman Rushdie Gunter Grass Toni Morrison and Ben Okri Faris argues that by combining realistic representation with fantastic elements so that the marvelous seems to grow organically out of the ordinary magical realism destabilizes the dominant form of realism based on empirical definitions of reality gives it visionary power and thus constitutes what might be called a remystification of narrative in the West Noting the radical narrative heterogeneity of magical realism the author compares its cultural role to that of traditional shamanic performance which joins the worlds of daily life and that of the spirits Because of that capacity to bridge different worlds magical realism has served as an effective decolonizing agent providing the ground for marginal voices submerged traditions and emergent literatures to develop and create masterpieces At the same time this process is not limited to postcolonial situations but constitutes a global trend that replenishes realism from within In addition to describing what many consider to be the progressive cultural work of magical realism Faris also confronts the recent accusation that magical realism and its study as a global phenomenon can be seen as a form of commodification and an imposition of cultural homogeneity And finally drawing on the narrative innovations and cultural scenarios that magical realism enacts she extends those principles toward issues of gender and the possibility of a female element within magical realism Análisis de Aura Emilio Valdés,2003 Aura Carlos Fuentes,1985
