The first step of the current dissertation was to conduct a macro environmental analysis with the purpose of investigating the future prospects of the BRICs and therefore the socio economic challenges that are believed to be actual and future constraints for the BRICs sustainable growth. This study is also based on an economic model developed by the researcher with the objective of investigating the BRICs prospects in GDP per capita terms whose initial findings were analysed considering GS's and PricewaterhouseCoopers PwC studies. As a result of this study, the BRICs are projected not to be the leader economies in per capita terms by 2050. However, considering that the long term and uncertain
