

Acids and Bases

Acids

Acids are compounds that add H^+ ions to a water solution.

Many of our foods are acidic: citric (lemons; oranges); apples; tomato sauce.

Acids taste sour and feel “squeaky” when you rub your fingers together.

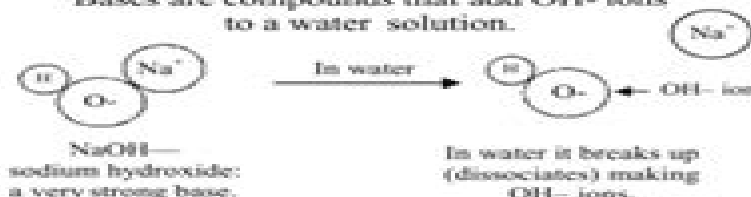

Strong acids and bases—ionize almost completely in water, contributing many ions.

Strong acids and bases can burn your skin or eyes.

Bases

Bases are compounds that add OH^- ions to a water solution.

Many of our cleaning products are basic (ammonia [Windex]; soap; bleach) because they neutralize acidic food.

Bases taste bitter and feel slippery.

Weak acids and bases—ionize incompletely, contributing just a few ions.

pH—The Measure of Acids and Bases

Neutralization (Titration)

When acids and bases are mixed they neutralize each other. Equal concentrations of acids and bases make neutral salt water.

A typical neutralization reaction:

Chemists call ANY ionic compound a salt. $NaCl$ is a special salt: table salt.

One of the products of a titration is always water!

Diluting Acids

Never add water to a concentrated acid!

When acid compounds are dissolved in water, heat is produced (sometimes a lot of heat). Acids are more dense than water, so if you add water to a concentrated acid, water sits on top and can flash boil (quickly boil). The boiled water can splash up burning you with hot water and acid. If the acid is added to water it sinks thru the water and is diluted safely.

Always add acids to water!
