The Physics and Dynamics of Planetary Nebulae Grigor A. Gurzadyan, 1997-04-17 Planetary nebulae are the classic subject of astrophysics The physical processes occurring in this highly ionized gaseous medium the formation of emission lines in clearly specified conditions the continuous emission extending from the far ultraviolet up to infrared and radio frequencies the generation of exotic forms of radiation predicted by atomic physics along with methods for deciphering the observed spectra and detecting physical and kinematic parameters of the radiating medium etc all these problems form the solid foundations of the physical theory of gaseous nebulae They are an essential part of the arsenal of powerful tools and concepts without which one cannot imagine understanding and interpreting the enormous diversity of processes taking place in the Universe in gaseous envelopes surrounding the stars of various classes from cool dwarfs and flare stars up to hot supergiants as well as in stellar chromospheres and coronae in atmospheres of unstable and anomalous stars in circumstellar clouds and gaseous shells born in nova and supernova explosions in diffuse nebulae and the interstellar medium in interacting binary systems in galaxies with emission lines in quasars etc The last thirty years have seen a turning point in our knowledge concerning the very nature of planetary nebulae PNs The radio emission of PNs was discovered after it was predicted theoretically On the other hand the powerful infrared emission discovered both in the continuum and in emission lines was never expected
