Productivity, Investment in Human Capital and the Challenge of Youth Employment Pietro Manzella,2011-07-12 From an international and comparative perspective young people s access to the labour market is a complex issue with certain contradictory aspects reflecting the level of development of labour law and industrial relations in their respective countries In the most advanced economies there has been a steady increase in the age at which young people exit the educational system and enter the labour market giving rise to significant economic and social problems The increase in levels of educational attainment is associated in some cases with an alarming rate of unemployment among those with academic qualifications while employers encounter considerable difficulty in recruiting workers for

unskilled and semi skilled positions The economies of developing countries on the other hand are characterized by different trends reminiscent of the early stages of modern labour law with the large scale exploitation of young workers and children many of whom join the flow of migrants towards the more highly developed regions of the world with the consequent risk of impoverishing human capital in the country of origin The ADAPT Labour Studies Book Series has in connection been set up with a view to achieving a better understanding of these and other issues in the field of Labour and Employment relations in a global dimension through an interdisciplinary and comparative approach
