Names For The Sea Strangers In Iceland Sarah Moss:

Names for the Sea Sarah Moss, 2013-05-01 A beautifully written memoir of a family's year living in Reykjavik Iceland that captures the fierce beauty of the Arctic landscape from the acclaimed author of Ghost Wall Booklist Sarah Moss had a childhood dream of moving to Iceland sustained by a wild summer there when she was nineteen In 2009 she saw an advertisement for a job at the University of Iceland and applied on a whim despite having two young children and a comfortable life in Kent England The resulting adventure was shaped by Iceland's economic collapse which halved the value of her salary by the eruption of the volcano Eyjafjallajökull and by a collection of new friends including a poet who saw the only bombs fall on Iceland in 1943 a woman who speaks to elves and a chef who guided Sarah's family around the intricacies of Icelandic cuisine Moss explored hillsides of boiling mud and volcanic craters and learned to drive like an Icelander on the unsurfaced roads that link remote farms and fishing villages in the far north She watched the northern lights and the comings and goings of migratory birds and as the weeks and months went by she and her family learned new ways to live Names for the Sea is her compelling and very funny account of living in a country poised on the edge of Europe where modernization clashes with living folklore

Vulnerability Risk Cathryn finds herself torn between the life and self she's come to know and the new world Mack offers. Commitments await her back in America. But if she walks away she'll lose this chance to feel deeply again. Just when her path seems clear she's faced with a shocking discovery and a devastating choice that shows her what love really is. Political Sign Tobias Carroll, 2020-09-03

Object Lessons is a series of short beautifully designed books about the hidden lives of ordinary things. In an election year political signs can be impossible to avoid. They're in front yards on bumper stickers and in some places you might never have expected. Tobias Carroll chronicles the permutations and secret histories of political signs venturing into the story of how they came to be and illuminating how the signs around us shape us in ways we often fail to appreciate. In an era of political polarization and heated debate what can be learned from studying how our personal space becomes the setting for both. Understanding political signs can help us understand our current political moment and how we might transcend it. Object Lessons is published in partnership with an essay series in The Atlantic. The Routledge Companion to William Morris Florence S. Boos, 2020-10-29

William Morris 1834-96 was an English poet, decorative artist, translator, romance writer, book designer, preservationist, socialist theorist, and political activist whose admirers have been drawn to the sheer intensity of his artistic endeavors and efforts to live up to radical ideals of social justice. This Companion draws together historical and critical responses to the impressive range of Morris's multi-faceted life and activities: his homes, travels, family, business, practices, decorative artwork, poetry, fantasy, romances, translations, political activism, eco-socialism, and book collecting and design. Each chapter provides valuable historical and literary background information, reviews relevant opinions on its subject from the late nineteenth century to the present, and offers new approaches to important aspects of its topic. Morris's eclectic methodology and the perennial relevance of his insights and practice make this an essential handbook for those interested in art history, poetry, translation, literature, book design, environmentalism, political activism, and Victorian and utopian studies. Childhood in the Contemporary English Novel Sandra Dinter, 2019-10-10

Since the 1980s novels about childhood for adults have been a booming genre within the contemporary British literary market. Childhood in the Contemporary English Novel offers the first comprehensive study of this literary trend. Assembling analyses of key works by Ian McEwan, Doris Lessing, P. D. James, Nick Hornby, Sarah Moss, and Stephen Kelman and situating them in their cultural and political contexts, Sandra Dinter uncovers both the reasons for the current popularity of such fiction and the theoretical shift that distinguishes it from earlier literary epochs. The book's central argument is that the contemporary English novel draws on the constructivist paradigm shift that revolutionized the academic study of childhood several decades ago. Contemporary works of fiction, Dinter argues, depart from the notion of childhood as a naturally given phase of life and examine the agents' interests and conflicts involved in its cultural production. Dinter also considers the limits of this new theoretical impetus, observing that authors and scholars alike, even when they claim to conceive of childhood as a construct, do not always give up on the idea of its natural core. Accordingly, this book reconstructs how the English novel between the 1980s and the 2010s oscillates between an acknowledgment of constructivism and an endorsement of childhood as the last irrevocable quintessence of humanity In doing so it successfully extends the literary and cultural history of childhood to the immediate present

Fictionalizing Anthropology Stuart J. McLean, 2017-11-22 What might become of anthropology if it were to suspend its sometime claims to be a social science What if it were to turn instead to exploring its affinities with art and literature as a mode of engaged creative practice carried forward in a world heterogeneously composed of humans and other than humans Stuart McLean claims that anthropology stands to learn most from art and literature not as evidence to support explanations based on an appeal to social context or history but as modes of engagement with the materiality of expressive media including language that always retain the capacity to disrupt or exceed the human projects enacted through them At once comparative in scope and ethnographically informed Fictionalizing Anthropology draws on an eclectic range of sources including ancient Mesopotamian myth Norse saga literature Hesiod Lucretius Joyce Artaud and Lispector as well as film multimedia and performance art along with the concept of fabulation the making of fictions capable of intervening in and transforming reality developed in the writings of Bergson and Deleuze Sharing with proponents of anthropology's recent ontological turn McLean insists that experiments with language and form are a performative means of exploring alternative possibilities of collective existence new ways of being human and other than human and that such experiments must therefore be indispensable to anthropology's engagement with the contemporary world

The Fell Sarah Moss, 2022-03-01 A slim tense page turner I gulped The Fell down in one sitting Emma Donoghue author of The Pull of the Stars From the award winning author of Ghost Wall and Summerwater Sarah Moss's The Fell is a riveting novel of mutual responsibility personal freedom and the ever nearness of disaster At dusk on a November evening a woman slips through her garden gate and turns up the hill Kate is in the middle of a two week mandatory quarantine period a true lockdown but she can't take it anymore the closeness of the air in her small house the confinement And anyway the moor will be deserted at this time Nobody need ever know she's stepped out Kate planned only a quick walk a stretch of the legs a breath of fresh air on paths she knows too well But somehow she falls Injured unable to move she sees that her short furtive stroll will become a mountain rescue operation maybe even a missing person case Sarah Moss's The Fell is a story of mutual responsibility personal freedom and compassion Suspenseful witty and wise it asks probing questions about how close so many live to the edge and about who we are in the world who we are to our neighbors and who we become when the world demands we shut ourselves away
