behaviors include all psychological variables that are measurable in a human being The statement that others presence may be imagined or implied suggests that we are prone to social influence even when no other people are present such as when watching television or following internalized cultural norms Social psychologists typically explain human behavior as a result of the interaction of mental states and immediate social situations In general social psychologists have a preference for laboratory based empirical findings Social psychology theories tend to be specific and focused rather than global and general Social psychologists therefore deal with the factors that lead us to behave in a given way in the presence of others and look at the conditions under which certain behavior actions and feelings occur Social psychology is concerned with the way these feelings thoughts beliefs intentions and goals are constructed and how such psychological factors in turn influence our interactions with others Social psychology is an interdisciplinary domain that bridges the gap between psychology and sociology During the years immediately following World War II there was frequent collaboration between psychologists and sociologists However the two disciplines have become increasingly specialized and isolated from each other in recent years with sociologists focusing on macro variables e g social structure to a much greater extent Nevertheless sociological approaches to social psychology remain an important counterpart to psychological research in this area In addition to the split between psychology and sociology there has been a somewhat less pronounced difference in emphasis between American social psychologists and European social psychologists As a broad generalization American researchers traditionally have focused more on the individual whereas Europeans have paid more attention to group level phenomena
