National Audit Office: Ministry of Defence: Equipment Plan 2013 to 2023 - HC 816 Great Britain: National Audit Office,2014-02-13 The Department s work to address the affordability gap around the equipment budget and costs appears to have had a positive effect However there remain risks to affordability most significantly around the half of the budget relating to equipment support costs which were not subjected these to the same level of detailed scrutiny as the procurement costs The Department also does not understand the implications of its 1 2 billion underspend on the Equipment Plan in 2012 13 With the exception of the Queen Elizabeth Class aircraft carriers there have been no significant cost increases and only minimal in year delays In the last year there was a net increase in costs of 708 million in respect of the 11 projects in the review The main contribution to this was a 754 million increase in the cost of carriers Three of the projects the report examined experienced delays during the year together amounting to 17 months A third of projects this year reported delays compared to over half of the projects in last year s report However the NAO is unable to report on timings for two of the 11 projects Lightning II and Specialist Vehicles because the Department has not yet given final approval This report also includes an examination of the MOD s Complex Weapons Programme which aims to achieve net financial benefits of 1 2 billion over ten years Noting that these benefits have already been banked if there are delays or cancellations some of these benefits may be lost
