

Chapter 1

The Demand for Audit and Other Assurance Services

■ Review Questions

R-1 The relationship among audit services, assurance services, and assurance services is reflected in Figure 1-1 on page 12 of the text. An independent service is an independent professional service to improve the quality of information for decision making. An assurance service is a form of assurance service in which the CPA firm issues a report about the reliability of an agreement that is the responsibility of another party. Audit services are a form of assurance service in which the auditor expresses a written conclusion about the degree of correspondence between information and established criteria.

The most common form of audit service is an audit of financial statement assertions, in which the auditor expresses a conclusion as to whether the financial statements are presented in accordance with an applicable financial reporting framework such as U.S. GAAP or IFRS. An example of an assurance service is a report on the effectiveness of an entity's internal control over financial reporting. There are many other forms of assurance services, including services related to business performance measurement, health care performance, and information systems reliability.

R-2 An independent audit is a means of satisfying the need for reliable information on the part of decision makers. Features of a complex society that contribute to this need are:

1. Separation of information
 - a. Changing ownership structure from management
 - b. Growing reliance on data for key decisions or decisions
 - c. Movement of the business activity, resources, geographic location and other corporate structures
2. Growing number of providers
 - a. Information will be based on trust of the providers with no real goods or movement with the providers' own goods
3. Increasing size
 - a. Growing reliance of transactions processed daily via sophisticated computerized systems
 - b. Multiple product lines
 - c. Multiple ownership structures
4. Complex exchange transactions
 - a. More and changing needs as relationships grow in complexity
 - b. Increasing and increasing complexity
 - c. Increased impact of transactions not quantifiable, leading to increased uncertainty
