

DISPOSITIONAL POSITIVE EMOTIONS SCALE (DPES) –LOVE SUBSCALE.

Reference:

Shiota, M. N., Keltner, D., & John O. P. (2006). Positive emotion dispositions differentially associated with Big Five personality and attachment style. Journal of Positive Psychology, 1, 61-71.

Description of Measure:

The love subscale of the DPES is a 6-item questionnaire that measures a dispositional tendency to feel love. Love is defined as “the surge of feeling experienced when one perceives another acting as a reliable and trustworthy caregiver, and submits passively and fully to being the recipient of this care (pp. 64).” Respondents report their level of agreement with each item on a 7-point Likert-type scale ranging from 1 (strongly disagree) to 7 (strongly agree).

Sprecher, S. & Fehr, B. (2005). Compassionate love for close others and humanity. Journal of Social and Personal Relationships, 22, 629-651.

A compassionate love scale was developed that can be used, in alternative forms, to assess compassionate or altruistic love for different targets (e.g., close others and all of humankind). Using three samples (total N = 529), the Compassionate Love scale was developed and piloted. Three studies (total N = 700) were then conducted to provide validation of the scale and to examine correlates of compassionate love. In support of our predictions, compassionate love was found to be associated positively with prosocial behavior, as directed both to close others and to all of humanity. Those who were more religious or spiritual experienced more compassionate love than those who were less religious or spiritual. Evidence was found that compassionate love is distinct from empathy. In the final study, we introduced a relationship-specific version of the Compassionate Love scale, and found that compassionate love for a specific close other was associated with the provision of social support for that person.

Hendrick, C. & Hendrick, S. (1986). A theory and method of love. Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, 50, 392-402.

This research was part of a larger research program on love and sex attitudes. Earlier work on love was reported in Hendrick, Hendrick, Foote, and Slapion-Foote (1984). The work on love extends Lee's (1973/1976) theory of six basic love styles: Eros (passionate love), Ludus (game-playing love), Storge (friendship love), Pragma (logical, “shopping list” love), Mania (possessive, dependent love), and Agape (all-giving, selfless love). Theory development has proceeded concurrently with the development of measurement scales. Study I (N = 807) used a 42-item rating questionnaire, with 7 items measuring each of the love styles. Six love style scales emerged clearly from factor analysis. Internal reliability was shown for each scale, and the scales had low intercorrelations with each other. Significant relationships were found between love attitudes and several background variables, including gender, ethnicity, previous love experiences, current love status, and self-esteem. Confirmatory Study II (N = 567) replicated factor structure, factor loadings, and reliability analyses of the first study. In addition, the significant relationships between love attitudes and gender, previous love

Emotional Success David DeSteno,2018-01-30 David DeSteno s Emotional Success is an exploration of harnessing the practical power of using positive emotion to impact decision making Current models promote suppressing emotion and using willpower as a means of self control which DeSteno argues is not viable in the long term With comparisons to well known studies and a balance of hard research and popular culture examples Emotional Success calls for a paradigm shift in the way in which we talk about the effect of responding emotionally Presented in four sections that pull together cutting edge research from his own Northeastern University lab DeSteno explores the benefit of promoting the prosocial emotions of gratitude compassion pride and guilt Trying to balance and control emotions by using cognitive strategies is complicated and often ineffective in the long term but building decisions based on an emotional response is in alignment with a gut feeling In a similar way to how the zeitgeist has looked to mindfulness as a means by which negotiate the information overload of modern life learning to use emotion as a response toolkit is an essential way to achieve rational decision making with a real long term impact Positive Emotion June Gruber,Judith Tedlie Moskowitz,2014 Everyone cares about positive emotion and what makes us happy But do we really know both sides of the story about our most treasured feelings This comprehensive volume provides the first account of the light and the dark sides of positive emotion and how they can help us and sometimes even hurt us
