

Top 50 Electrical Engineering Questions & Answers

Q1: What is the difference between earth and neutral?

Answer:

- Neutral is a return current path for equipment and earthing is protection for humans and Earth is a support for neutral.
- If neutral is not present, the machine we are using will get in full phase and we will get a shock. So earthing is done to avoid such shocks.

Q2: What is the difference between an Insulator and a Dielectric?

Answer: Dielectrics are used to store the electric charges, while insulators are used to block the flow of electric charges. All dielectrics are insulators (they don't allow the flow of electric charges through them) but all insulators aren't dielectric because they can't store charges unlike dielectrics.

Q3: What are the disadvantages of low power factor?

Answer: The disadvantages are: Large KVA rating of equipment, Greater conductor size, large copper losses, Poor voltage regulation and Reduced handling capacity of the system.

Q4: Why is earth pin longest and thickest?

Answer: More the thickness of the wire/conductor less is the resistance. A thick earth pin provides a less resistant path for the current to be grounded. This is for safety so that the leakage current if any will take the less resistant path from earth pin to ground rather than a person operating an appliance.

Q5: What is Hysteresis loss?

Answer: Hysteresis loss is a heat loss caused by the magnetic properties of the armature.

- When an armature core is in a magnetic field, the magnetic particles of the core tend to line up with the magnetic field.
- When the armature core is rotating, its magnetic field keeps changing direction. The continuous movement of the magnetic particles, as they try to align themselves with the magnetic field, produces molecular friction.
- This, in turn, produces heat. This heat is transmitted to the armature windings. The heat causes armature resistances to increase, to compensate for hysteresis losses, heat-treated silicon steel laminations are used.

Q6: Which is the motor used in fan?

Answer: Single-phase induction motor is used in fan.

Q7: Why do we use the starter for a DC motor?

Answer: Large DC motors with field windings instead of permanent magnets have a very heavy load when starting. To prevent fuses from blowing, a series of small resistors are sequentially switched in series with the motor.
