Co Management Of Natural Resources:

Towards Negotiated Co-management of Natural Resources in Africa L. B. Venema, 1999 Within the field of management of natural resources this book focuses on the various approaches of policy formulation and implementation The question central to this book is how to co operate with people the various categories of residents as well as non residents in the rural areas in a top down a participatory or a contractual co management way On the basis of a comparative analysis of 12 case studies in the book these three approaches are thoroughly discussed and their internal and external constraints examined The book starts with an editorial chapter discussing the recent administrative and political developments in Africa as well as the new opportunities which they offer for policies in the field of environment and development The question is brought up whether the recent processes of decentralization democratization and empowerment of local organizations have indeed created new opportunities or that they have only superficially changed the political culture of the countries concerned In the concluding chapter of the book the approaches are contrasted to each other as logical models each with its own potentiality and limitations Conclusions are formulated why the top down approach must result in improvization to escape from failure and why the participatory approach risks to end up into a mixed balance Special attention is given to the conditions and the prospects for the contractual or co management approach which has been introduced into Africa only recently Under certain conditions this approach seems rather promising

Co-management of Natural Resources in Asia Gerard Persoon, Diny M. E. van Est, Percy E. Sajise, 2003 One of the few studies focusing on co management of natural resources as opposed to general environmental issues This approach to environmental management is rapidly becoming popular in Asia Co management that is the sharing of responsibilities between governmental institutions and groups of resource users is rapidly becoming popular in Asia In many countries environmental management is reformulated from exclusive state control to various kinds of joint management in which local communities indigenous peoples and non governmental organizations share authority and benefits with governmental institutions In this book case studies of experiments with co management in a number of countries are combined with more reflective contributions pointing to underlying assumptions and problems in the actual implementation of co management

Classic Papers in Natural Resource Economics Revisited Chennat Gopalakrishnan,2018-02-02 Classic Papers in Natural Resource Economics Revisited is the first attempt to bring together a selection of classic papers in natural resource economics alongside reflections by highly regarded professionals about how these papers have impacted the field The seven papers included in this volume are grouped into five sections representing the five core areas in natural resource economics the intertemporal problem externalities and market failure property rights institutions and public choice the economics of exhaustible resources and the economics of renewable resources The seven papers are written by distinguished economists five of them Nobelists The papers originally published between 1960 and 2000 addressed key issues in resource production pricing consumption planning management and policy The original insights fresh perspectives and bold vision embodied in these papers had a profound influence on the readership and they became classics in the field This is the first attempt to publish original commentaries from a diverse group of scholars to identify probe and analyse the ways in which these papers have impacted and shaped the discourse in natural resource economics Although directed primarily at an academic audience this book should also be of great appeal to researchers policy analysts and natural resource professionals in general This book was published as a series of symposia in the Journal of Natural Resources Policy Research

Conflicts over Marine and Coastal Common Resources Karen A. Alexander, 2019-07-09 This book explores the types of conflicts that occur over marine and coastal resources the underlying causes and attempts to prevent them Despite the emergence of various marine and coastal governance approaches to address the effects of human activities within the marine environment conflict continues In this book the author outlines the reasons conflicts can and do arise in the marine and coastal environment Drawing on case studies from both the northern and southern hemispheres the book takes a broad view of how we interact with our environment of how and why conflict is perpetuated as a political and cultural phenomenon and how this varies or remains constant across space and place The case studies explore not only the underlying perceptions and needs of those involved in marine and coastal conflict and the types of conflicts that arise in oceanic and coastal areas but also the underpinning reasons for these conflicts Marine and coastal resource conflicts have the potential to derail conservation efforts and blue growth policies as well as the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals Thus it is imperative we understand the drivers and exacerbating factors of marine and coastal conflict Arguing that there is an urgent need for renewed thinking and focus on conflict prevention the author develops a theory of marine and coastal conflict which allows us to understand those factors and the means to help prevent such conflicts arising in the first place This book will be of interest to students and researchers of coastal and marine science and environmental management as well as those working in the field of marine resource management including coastal zone managers and fisheries managers

Social and Gender Analysis in Natural Resource Development Ronnie Vernooy, 2006-02-13 Asian societies are not only complex but are undergoing rapid change in the face of the forces of globalization and privatization Issues of gender class caste ethnicity and age are central to understanding power relations and decision making processes concerning the access to use of and management of natural resources This necessitates a sound understanding of social realities in order to ensure proper participation in and the equitable distribution of the benefits of development interventions and policies Written in this framework this volume documents and reflects on the steps being taken by researchers of natural resource management to implement social and gender analysis in South and Southeast Asia Grounded in empirical reality the six case studies are drawn from India Nepal China Viet Nam and Mongolia The volume concludes with a comparative analysis of the six cases This analysis highlights the key common issues and challenges identified by the research teams These include organizational change mainstreaming social and gender issues the enduring inequities facing women and improving the quality of participation

Communities, Livelihoods and Natural Resources International Development Research Centre (Canada),2006 This book synthesizes results from a 7 year programme of applied research on community based approaches to natural resource management in Asia By presenting field reports of innovative approaches to poverty reduction and sustainable resource use it provides practitioners with models of good practice in participatory community based resource management and it demonstrates how site based research contributes to broader learning in the field of natural resource management and policy There are 11 case studies featured from some of the most marginal areas of rural China Mongolia Laos V

Co-managing complex social-ecological systems in Tanzania Christopher Mahonge,2023-09-04 It has been conventional among co management scientists to view social ecological systems and actors and institutions found in these systems monolithically Such a view is simplistic and conceals the complex nature of social ecological systems and associated institutions and actors In essence a social ecological system is a complex system comprised of multiple diverse and dynamic social ecological units players and rules This book entitled Co managing complex social ecological systems unveils the aforementioned complexity in which Lake Jipe wetland in Tanzania is the central case This case depicts intra inter and cross scale interactions among multiple and dynamic institutions actors and ecological systems at different dimensions of space and time While some candidates of actors and institutions play separate roles others play interdependent and linking roles across the multiple sectoral social ecological units The book introduces the layering concept of institutions and actors in three sectoral arrangements at Lake Jipe It argues that not only do the institutions and actors found in social ecological systems operate next to one another but it becomes clear that they also work interdependently This concept extends the existing knowledge of co management practitioners and scholars about the diversity and complexity of inter linked human environment systems that traverse the current monolithic view and conceptual boundaries As such the book avoids a simplistic approach that may end up in superficial treatment of complex environmental management problem and sheds light on how to study and approach intricate social ecological systems using a model that recognises the diversities of these intricate systems Adaptive Cross-scalar Governance of Natural Resources Grenville Barnes, Brian Child, 2014-04-24 Natural resource governance is critical for linking poverty reduction and sustainable natural resource use This book brings together authors from various disciplines with extensive field experience to promote an integrative understanding of cross scale and adaptive governance in Africa and Latin America The authors make the case for reaching beyond decentralization to promote adaptive governance that serves local priorities but through interactions with local district national and global governance structures The book focuses on the governance of common pool resources such as forests wildlife water carbon and pasture resources in both Africa and Latin America This book will appeal to development practitioners and scholars concerned about the conservation of natural resources and the sustainable development of communities It synthesizes experience with the governance of different natural resources from a broad geographic perspective It also provides theoretical and practical suggestions for taking adaptive natural resource governance forward including participatory methods for measuring and monitoring governance Aboriginal Peoples and Natural Resources in Canada Claudia Notzke, 1994 The most current and comprehensive book of its kind Aboriginal Peoples and Natural Resources in Canada explores the opportunities and constraints that aboriginal people encounter in their efforts to use water resources fisheries forestry resources wildlife land and non renewable resources and to gain management power over these resources This examination begins with a historical perspective and takes into account cultural political legal and geographical factors From the contemporary research of the author the reader is informed of the most current developments and provided with a well reasoned outlook for the future This book is an essential resource for aboriginal people engaged in the use and management of natural resources and for those who seek professional training in the field Anyone wanting to know more about the social and environmental issues pertaining to more responsible and equitable environmental and ecological management will find a wealth of information in this volume BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Water Co-Management Velma I. Grover, Gail Krantzberg, 2013-02-21 Co management is a highly dynamic evolving adaptive and forward looking process This edited volume covers theoretical background and includes supporting lessons learnt from field experiences The book has case studies from both North and South America co management of fisheries resilience in near shore waters of the Great Lakes
