Sat Obiyan,Kunle Amuwo,2013 This book addresses various issues that have arisen in the practice of democracy in Nigeria since 1999 focusing on the Obasanjo years 1999 2007 Nigeria's return to democratic rule has been marked by developments such as the implementation of reforms to address perceived economic problems and corruption. The introduction of democracy in the country has also witnessed many challenges including the difficult relationship between some political chief executives and their deputies, intriguing intergovernmental relations, the rise and resurgence of sub-national groups that pose serious threat to the hegemony of the state, precarious inter-ethnic inter-sectional relations, attempts to perpetuate the tenure of chief executives through constitutional amendments and developments in electoral politics and conflicts. Local Government in Nigeria Tunde Ojofeitimi, 1992 Religion, Violence, and Local Power-Sharing in Nigeria Laura Thaut Vinson, 2017-10-26 Why does religion become a fault line of communal violence in some pluralistic countries and not others? Under what conditions will religious identity as opposed to other salient ethnic cleavages become the spark that ignites communal violence? Contemporary world politics since 9/11 is increasingly marked by intra-state communal clashes in which religious identity is the main fault line. Yet violence erupts only in some religiously pluralistic countries and only in some parts of those countries. This study argues that prominent theories in the study of civil conflict cannot adequately account for the variation in subnational identity-based violence. Examining this variation in the context of Nigeria's pluralistic north-central region, this book finds support for a new theory of power sharing. It finds that communities are less likely to fall prey to a divisive narrative of religious difference where local leaders informally agreed to abide by an inclusive local government power sharing arrangement. Transit Oriented Development in West African Cities Timothy Nubi, Taibat Lawanson, Basirat Oyalowo, 2024-08-12

The book addresses conceptual issues around urban transportation policy and practice in selected West African cities. It highlights the institutional, socio-economic and infrastructural barriers of transit-oriented development in West Africa. Through a series of case studies, the chapters present how transport governance systems affect housing, land, infrastructure development, urbanization dynamics, construction and the urban poor. The chapters in this book are written by authors from multi-disciplinary backgrounds including architecture, construction management, real estate, urban planning and public health and are members of the African Research Network on Urbanization and Habitable Cities, a research network supported by the UKRI African Research Universities Alliance Capacity Building Programme. By providing a solid empirical portrait based on lived and research experience, this book will be a great resource to students, academics and policy makers in transport, urban planning and development policy as well as social scientists. The environmental justice thereby leading to mass armed conflict between them and the government security agencies. Sometimes the confrontation could be between them and other rival local resource actors in the informal sector of their country's economy bearing in mind that the resources within their jurisdiction have become the central determinant of national commonwealth. It is at that state of desperado to control access, extraction and sale of natural resources in a State by different armed groups that the process of natural resources extraction qualifies as the most visible cause of conflicts and crises around the African continent that is the centrepiece of the book. This is quite understandable given that mineral resource is a gift of nature and nature is that phenomenon that every human group and nation claim to represent or believe to represent them.
