available from bioengineering and computer science to construction management Energy Justice Rukonge Sospeter Muhongo, 2020-11-02 This book explores local content policies and their role in natural resource management within the realm of energy justice. Based on several country case studies, it discusses the role of regional integration for such policies in Sub-Saharan Africa. Energy justice has been widely applied across different aspects of development, but here the principles of justice are specifically integrated with the management and implementation of oil and gas projects. Such an analysis offers novel means of implementing policies in local regions, moving away from a one-size-fits-all approach that leads to the ineffective transplantation of policies from developed economies to developing Sub-Saharan economies. The book argues that with a regional approach, Sub-Saharan Africa can leverage natural resources, industrial parks, supplier clusters, regional financing mechanisms, and regional training facilities, which would drive down the costs of production, increase efficiency, and integrate the local Sub-Saharan population into the oil and gas industry. This would result in the benefits as well as the environmental concerns and responsibilities intrinsic to these industries being spread more equally amongst local and non-local stakeholders. This book will be a valuable resource for scholars and students as well as policy makers and practitioners in the areas of extractive industry-related disciplines, energy governance, and economic development in Africa.
