The Mind Of Maker Dorothy L Sayers:

The Mind of the Maker Dorothy L. Sayers, 2016-12-22 This book is not an apology for Christianity nor is it an expression of personal religious belief It is a commentary in the light of specialised knowledge on a particular set of statements made in the Christian creeds and their claim to be statements of fact It is necessary to issue this caution for the popular mind has grown so confused that it is no longer able to receive any statement of fact except as an expression of personal feeling Some time ago the present writer pardonably irritated by a very prevalent ignorance concerning the essentials of Christian doctrine published a brief article in which those essentials were plainly set down in words that a child could understand Every clause was preceded by some such phrase as the Church maintains the Church teaches if the Church is right and so forth The only personal opinion expressed was that though the doctrine might be false it could not very well be called dull Every newspaper that reviewed this article accepted it without question as a profession of faith some Heaven knows why called it a courageous profession of faith as though professing Christians in this country were liable to instant persecution One review syndicated throughout the Empire called it a personal confession of faith by a woman who feels sure she is right Now what the writer believes or does not believe is of little importance one way or the other What is of great and disastrous importance is the proved inability of supposedly educated persons to read So far from expressing any personal belief or any claim to personal infallibility the writer had simply offered a flat recapitulation of official doctrine adding that nobody was obliged to believe it There was not a single word or sentence from which a personal opinion could legitimately be deduced and for all the article contained it might perfectly well have been written by a well informed Zoroastrian

Mind of the Maker Dorothy L. Sayers, 2010-01-07 Dorothy L Sayers great lay contemporaries in the Church of England were T S Eliot C S Lewis and Charles Williams but none of them wrote a book quite like The Mind of the Maker In this crisp elegant exercise in theology Sayers illuminates the doctrine of the Trinity by relating it to the process of writing fiction a process about which she could speak with complete authority She illustrates her thesis with many examples drawn from her own books and even illuminates the Christian heresies by analysing certain failures of creation which regularly occur in literature This marvellous classic describes the creative process in terms of the arts and shows that literature can cast light on theology and vice versa surprising dearth of critical publication surrounding her work Taking Doomsday Book as its cue this collection argues that Connie Willis's most famous novel along with the rest of her oeuvre performs science fiction's task of cognitive estrangement by highlighting our human inability to read the times correctly and yet also affirming the ethical imperative to attempt to truly observe and record our temporal location Willis's fiction emphasizes that doomsdays happen every day and they risk being forgotten by some even as their trauma repeats for others However disasters also have the potential to upend accepted knowledge and transform the social order for the better and this collection considers the ways that Willis pairs comic and tragic modes to reflect these uncertainties

Evidence on Her Own Behalf Elizabeth A. Say, 1990-11-28 Most theological language which is available is based on men's stories stories told about men's lives and interpreted from a distinctly masculine perspective In such stories women by and large are marginal characters When they occasionally do figure in a more central role the meaning of their actions is explained from a male viewpoint Before women can begin to ask questions about the meaning of their experience they must understand what this experience has been and this requires the telling of their own stories in their own voice Say's book draws on women's history literary theory and narrative theology to create a foundation for a critique of contemporary communitarian ethics It incorporates a refinement of the theory of the feminization of religion and education in nineteenth century Britain
