between approximately 2500 and 1500 BCE the city had longer lasting influences on the urbanization of the Indian subcontinent for centuries after its abandonment. It is believed to have been one of two capital cities of the Indus Civilization, its twin being Harappa located further north in Punjab, Pakistan. The fact that the ancient Indus Valley Civilization is also often referred to as the Harappan Civilization demonstrates how important the discovery of Harappa is. As archaeologists and historians began to uncover more of the ancient Harappa site in the 19th and early 20th centuries, a more complete picture of the city emerged, namely its importance. Research has shown that Harappa was one of the three most important Indus Valley cities, if not the most important, with several mounds of settlements uncovered that indicate building activities took place there for over 1,000 years. At its height, Harappa was a booming city of up to 50,000 people who were divided into neighborhoods by walls and who went about their daily lives in well-built, orderly streets. Harappa also had drainage systems, markets, public baths, and other large structures that may have been used for public ceremonies. Ancient Harappa was truly a thriving and vibrant city that was on par with contemporary cities in Mesopotamia such as Ur and Memphis in Egypt. Among the many cities that formed in the region was a site known today as Kalibangan, which was unknown to the modern world until archaeologists began uncovering its secrets in excavations during the 1960s. They uncovered a city that was not as large or important as the better-known sites of Mohenjo-daro and Harappa, but one that was still relatively large and the most important of all Indus cities along the now-extinct Saraswati River. Excavations at Kalibangan have revealed that the city had two phases of settlement which corresponded with the two major phases of Indus Valley Civilization and that it influenced the smaller settlements along the Saraswati River. Archaeological work at Kalibangan has also shown that although it followed some of the patterns of larger Indus cities such as Mohenjo-daro and Harappa, it was also a unique city in many ways. Kalibangan was located on a different river from the other major Indus Valley Civilization cities, and its river suffered a fate that led to the end of the city. The city of Kalibangan also presented modern archaeologists with a treasure trove of findings because it was one of the best-preserved Harappan sites, giving scholars a chance to see not only how the people of Kalibangan lived but possibly how the city died.

The Indus Valley Civilization Kartikeya Shukla,2021-06-25 The Indus Valley Civilization also known as the Indus Civilization was a bronze age civilization in the northwestern regions of South Asia lasting from 3300 BCE to 1300 BCE and in its mature form from 2600 BCE to 1900 BCE Together with Ancient Egypt and Mesopotamia it was one of three early civilizations of the near east and South Asia and of the three the most widespread its sites spanning an area stretching from today's northeast

Afghanistan through much of Pakistan and into western and northwestern India. It flourished in the basins of the Indus river which flows through the length of Pakistan and along a system of perennial mostly fed rivers that once coursed in the vicinity of the seasonal Ghaggar Hakra river in northwest India and eastern Pakistan.

The Ancient Indus Valley Jane R. McIntosh, 2007-11-12 This work is a revealing study of the enigmatic Indus civilization and how a rich repertoire of archaeological tools is being used to probe its puzzles. The Ancient Indus Valley New Perspectives takes readers back to a civilization as complex as its contemporaries in Mesopotamia and Egypt, one that covered a far larger region yet lasted a much briefer time, less than a millennium, and left few visible traces. Researchers have tentatively reconstructed a model of Indus life based on limited material remains and despite its virtually indecipherable written record. This volume describes what is known about the roots of Indus civilization in farming culture as well as its far-flung trading network, sophisticated crafts and architecture, and surprisingly war-free way of life. Readers will get a glimpse of both a remarkable piece of the past and the extraordinary methods that have brought it back to life.

Ancient Cities of the Indus Valley Civilization Jonathan M. Kenoyer, 1998 Ancient Cities of the Indus Valley Civilization presents a refreshingly new perspective on the earliest cities of Pakistan and western India, 2600-1900 BC. Through a careful examination of the most recent archaeological discoveries from excavations in both Pakistan and India, the author provides a stimulating discussion on the nature of the early cities and their inhabitants. This detailed study of the Indus architecture and civic organization also takes into account the distinctive crafts and technological developments that accompanied the emergence of urbanism. Indus trade and economy, as well as political and religious organizations, are illuminated through comparisons with other contemporaneous civilizations in Mesopotamia and Central Asia, and through ethnoarchaeological studies in later cultures of South Asia.
