Gender Violence at the U.S.-Mexico Border Hector Domínguez-Ruvalcaba, Ignacio Corona, 2010-03-15 The U S Mexico border is frequently presented by contemporary media as a violent and dangerous place But that is not a new perception For decades the border has been constructed as a topographic metaphor for all forms of illegality in which an ineffable link between space and violence is somehow assumed The sociological and cultural implications of violence have recently emerged at the forefront of academic discussions about the border And yet few studies have been devoted to one of its most disturbing manifestations gender violence This book analyzes this pervasive phenomenon including the femicides in Ciudad Juárez that have come to exemplify at least for the media its most extreme manifestation Contributors to this volume propose that the study of gender motivated violence requires interpretive and analytical strategies that draw on methods reaching across the divide between the social sciences and the humanities Through such an interdisciplinary conversation the book examines how such violence is represented in oral narratives newspaper reports films and documentaries novels TV series and legal discourse It also examines the role that the media have played in this process as well as the legal initiatives that might address this pressing social problem Together these essays offer a new perspective on the implications of and connections between gendered forms of violence and topics such as mechanisms of social violence the micro social effects of economic models the asymmetries of power in local national and transnational configurations and the particular rhetoric aesthetics and ethics of discourses that represent violence

Working with Men to End Gender-based Violence, 2004 Death and Other Penalties Lisa Guenther, Scott Zeman, 2015-04-01 Mass incarceration is one of the most pressing ethical and political issues of our time In this volume philosophers join activists and those incarcerated on death row to grapple with contemporary U S punishment practices and draw out critiques around questions of power identity justice and ethical responsibility This work takes shape against a backdrop of disturbing trends The United States incarcerates more of its own citizens than any other country in the world A disproportionate number of these prisoners are people of color and today a black man has a greater chance of going to prison than to college The United States is the only Western democracy to retain the death penalty even after decades of scholarship statistics and even legal decisions have depicted a deeply flawed system structured by racism and class oppression Motivated by a conviction that mass incarceration and state execution are among the most important ethical and political problems of our time the contributors to this volume come together from a diverse range of backgrounds to analyze critique and envision alternatives to the injustices of the U S prison system with recourse to deconstruction phenomenology critical race theory feminism queer theory and disability studies They engage with the hyper incarceration of people of color the incomplete abolition of slavery the exploitation of prisoners as workers and as raw material for the prison industrial complex the intensive confinement of prisoners in supermax units and the complexities of capital punishment in an age of abolition The resulting collection contributes to a growing intellectual and political resistance to the apparent inevitability of incarceration and state execution as responses to crime and to social inequalities It addresses both philosophers and activists who seek intellectual resources to contest the injustices of punishment in the United States

Baard,2020-01-01 Early feminist theologians criticized the Christian doctrine of sin for its focus on female sexual purity and its enabling of the marginalization and oppression of women Others have questioned whether the entire theological category of sin should be abandoned in favor of other ways of talking about the human predicament In this new book Rachel Baard argues for a feminist critique of traditional sin talk alongside a constructive reinterpretation of the doctrine of sinone that can be life affirming for all persons She claims that the Christian idea of sinthat tragic flaw at the core of human experienceprovides one of the best tools for understanding the evils of sexism patriarchy and traditional sin talk itself She likewise provides a new rhetoric of sin talk one that accounts for the diverse experiences of the human family not simply those of powerful men The Politics of Gender Violence Meghana Vasudev Nayak,2003 Journal of Social and
