The Motivation to Work Frederick Herzberg, Bernard Mausner, Barbara Bloch Snyderman, 2011-12-31 Quality work that fosters job satisfaction and health enjoys top priority in industry all over the world This was not always so Until recently analysis of job attitudes focused primarily on human relations problems within organizations While American industry was trying to solve the unsolvable problem of avoiding interpersonal dissatisfaction problems with the potential for solution such as training and quality production were ignored When first published The Motivation to Work challenged the received wisdom by showing that worker fulfillment came from achievement and growth within the job itself In his new introduction Herzberg examines thirty years of motivational research in job related areas Based on workers accounts of real events that have made them feel good or bad on the job the findings of Herzberg and his colleagues have stimulated research and controversy that continue to the present day The authors surprisingly found that while a poor work environment generated discontent improved conditions seldom brought about improved attitudes Instead satisfaction came most often from factors intrinsic to work achievements job recognition and work that was challenging interesting and responsible The evidence marshaled by this volume called into question many previous assumptions about job satisfaction and worker motivation Feelings about intrinsic and extrinsic factors could not be validly averaged on a single scale of measurement Motivation and performance are not merely dependent upon environmental needs and external rewards Frederick Herzberg and his staff based their motivation hygiene theory on a variety of human needs and applied it to a strategy of job enrichment that has widely influenced motivation and job design strategies Motivation to Work is a landmark volume that is of enduring interest to sociologists psychologists labor studies specialists and organization analysts Motivating Others David P.

Văduva, Ioan Ș. Fotea, Andrew R. Thomas, 2017-10-26 This book explores the increased necessity of organizations to encourage human talent in the globalized economy with particular emphasis on the impact in Eastern Europe Featuring contributions presented at the 7th Annual Griffiths School of Management International Conference on Business and Ethics GSMAC organized by Emanuel University of Oradea this book presents in depth analysis of the economic social and religious implications of the transition from low cost of labor to increased human talent in Eastern Europe and offers multiple theoretical and practical solutions In 2004 Klaus Schwab president and founder of the World Economic Forum stated that the old era of capitalism and socialism is being replaced by a new era of talentism. The true competitive advantage of organizations and nations is increasingly becoming human talent defined as the ability to have new ideas that have value. Nations and organizations are exploring ways to reform their education systems and organizational structures in order to train, foster and encourage human talent. In Eastern Europe since the fall of communism in 1989 the competitive advantage of the region has been low cost of labor. However since the integration within the European Union millions of Eastern Europeans have left their home countries rendering the low wage competitive advantage almost obsolete. In addition the migration of able working individuals has left behind mainly children and pensioners placing a disproportionately heavy burden upon public and government services. It is within this context that the contents of this book explore the impact of the increased need of high human talent on Eastern European countries. Featuring contributions around topics such as poverty, healthcare, management, cross border cooperation, education systems and religious influence on economic development, this book will be of interest to scholars, researchers, students and policy makers interested in the business development and economic growth of Eastern Europe.
