Phraseology in English Academic Writing Peter Andrew Howarth, 2013-05-22 This study examines the use of one category of prefabricated language restricted lexical collocations in native and non native academic English in the social sciences in an attempt to throw light on a neglected aspect of learner competence It first surveys the existing theoretical viewpoints on word combinations and then reviews experimental research into the psycholinguistic processing of prefabricated language which suggest that the role of conventional expressions is to facilitate fluent production and rapid comprehension A computer based corpus of native academic writing is analysed to discover to what extent and how such collocations are used in formal written English Conventionality of style it is suggested aids precision of expression clearly a quality highly valued in academic argument A corpus of non native writing is then subjected to a similar analysis While the collocational errors learners make do not on the whole seriously destroy intelligibility they can lead to a lack of precision and obscure the clarity of expression required in academic communication Pedagogical implications are then considered and it is seen that for the most part published teaching materials have failed to recognize the nature of collocations in general and offer little help The final part of the study examines the treatment of restricted collocations in both general and phraseological dictionaries for learners These are evaluated on their selection and presentation of collocations shown by the preceding research to be problematic for advanced learners The conclusion suggests that for such learners who are mostly studying the language independently good reference works are needed in the form of specialist collocational dictionaries The results of this research help to establish principles for the design of such dictionaries

Trends in Cognitive Linguistics Javier Valenzuela, Ana Rojo, Cristina Soriano, 2009 The series Duisburg Papers on Research in Language and Culture presents a forum for linguistic research on the interrelationship between language and culture The series is interdisciplinary in nature and consists of monographs and collections of papers The main purpose of the editors is to initiate a dialogue between linguistic science and neighboring disciplines such as sociology anthropology semiotics literary studies and intercultural communication
