

Autobiography of the Mango tree

Once upon a time and a long time ago a cuckoo found a reddish green mango. Attracted to it, it plucked the mango and flew off with it to gift it to his wife. His wife relished the mango as it was neither too sweet nor too ripe. After pecking into the mango it ate it and dropped the kernel on the muddy forest heath below. In came monsoon. The seed germinated and I was born.

I soon sprouted out and grew to be a healthy mango tree. By the next summer I began to bloom and soon I bore nice juicy mangoes. I was no ordinary mango tree. I was a ‘kaccha meetha’ mango tree. Birds flocked every day to enjoy my mangoes. Monkeys chattered along. Soon I grew into a lively guest house for birds and animals. I simply loved those times till some greedy men discovered me. They took all my mangoes and chopped my branches. Now I am just a bare bark bereft any activity. My happy life no longer exists. I live a lonely life.

Ortiz, 2024-09-19. Saxophonist Carlos Garnett, despite being blind in his later years, was an integral part of Miles Davis's nonet. His pivotal roles extended beyond live performances to studio work during the On the Corner era in 1972. Though he was born in a community of laborers who worked for the Panama Canal Company, his talent and work ethic led him to perform with some of the world's most notable musicians. Garnett's upbringing had influences from various cultures, including Jamaica, Trinidad, and Barbados, which informed his later musical fusions. This autobiography traces Carlos Garnett's journey from his native segregated town of Red Tank, now erased from modern maps. After establishing himself as a prominent musician in his homeland, Garnett left for Brooklyn, NY. There, he worked with Art Blakey, Freddie Hubbard, Charles Mingus, Andrew Hill, Mtume, James Norman Connors, and of course, Miles Davis. Garnett's original albums for Muse Records showcased his musical fusions, highlighting his talents as a composer, arranger, and instrumentalist.

A Cultural History of Plants in the Post-Classical Era, Alain Touwaide, 2023-12-14. A Cultural History of Plants in the Post-Classical Era covers the period from 500 to 1400, ranging across northern and central Europe to the Mediterranean and from the Byzantine and Arabic Empires to the Persian World, India, and China. This was an age of empires and fluctuating borders, presenting a changing mosaic of environments, populations, and cultural practices. Many of the ancient uses and meanings of plants were preserved, but these were overlaid with new developments in agriculture, landscapes, medicine, eating habits, and art. The six-volume set of the Cultural History of Plants presents the first comprehensive history of the uses and meanings of plants from prehistory to today. The themes covered in each volume are plants as staple foods, plants as luxury foods, trade and exploration, plant technology and science, plants and medicine, plants in culture, plants as natural ornaments, and the representation of plants. Alain Touwaide is Scientific Director at the Institute for the Preservation of Medical Traditions, Washington, D.C., USA. A Cultural History of Plants in the Post-Classical Era is the second volume in the six-volume set A Cultural History of Plants, also available online as part of Bloomsbury Cultural History, a fully searchable digital library; see www.bloomsburyculturalhistory.com. Staging Politics Julia C. Strauss, Donal B. Cruise O'Brien, 2007-04-27 This fresh and original study analyses how power presents itself in dramatic performance in these two increasingly economically and politically important continents Emotion and politics play a hugely important role in the politics of Asia and Africa but as this book sets out too much of western political research into the subject concentrates on apparent deficiencies on the weakness of institutions defects in the bureaucracy or markets poor management of elections absent judicial autonomy Viewing political performance through Western eyes in this way where politics is primarily about the naked pursuit of power and interests can lead to a misunderstanding of how politics actually works in Africa and Asia where process plays a far more important role Thus performance drama and emotion are far more integral to political outcome there than in the West By concentrating on this new perspective the authors each a recognised specialist in one or more states in Asia and Africa avoid this trap and offer a coherent picture of the impact political performance has on the culture and politics of these societies and how they function
