Hunting the 1918 Flu Kirsty Duncan, 2003-01-01 In 1918 the Spanish flu epidemic swept the world and killed an estimated 20 to 40 million people in just one year more than the number that died during the four years of the First World War To this day medical science has been at a loss to explain the Spanish flu's origin Most virologists are convinced that sooner or later a similarly deadly flu virus will return with a vengeance thus anything we can learn from the 1918 flu may save lives in a new epidemic Responding to sustained interest in this medical mystery Hunting the 1918 Flu presents a detailed account of Kirsty Duncan's experiences as she organized an international multi discipline scientific expedition to exhume the bodies of a group of Norwegian miners buried in Svalbard all victims of the flu virus Constant throughout is her determination to honour the Norwegian laws and the Svalbard customs that treat the dead and the living with respect especially when a live virus if unearthed could kill millions Another theme of the book is the author's growing love for Svalbard and its people Duncan's narrative describes a large scale medical project to uncover genetic material from the Spanish flu it also reveals the turbulent politics of a group moving towards a goal where the egos were as strong as the stakes were high The author herself a medical geographer is very frank about her bruising emotional financial and professional experiences on the dark side of science Duncan raises questions not only about public health epidemiology the ethics of science and the rights of subjects but also about the role of age gender and privilege in science While her search for the virus has shown promising results it has also revealed the dangers of science itself being subsumed in the rush for personal acclaim

Neuroscience and Art Amy Ione,2024-08-27 This book is focused on how understanding ourselves as humans is incomplete without considering both biological and cultural aspects Using the neurocultural perspective the book explores how everything in the world is filtered back and forth through the brain and culture The thrust of the book therefore is to explore the power of art in creating a bridge between cultural and neuroscientific lines of inquiry Looking at both clinical and non clinical populations the text examines historical foundations distinguishes congenital developmental conditions from those that are acquired and emphasizes how the brain constructs our sensory experiences Several distinctive features separate this research from other publications First the book opens with a review of how the historical literature is still etched into the ideas we employ to explain elements across the interdisciplinary fields of art aesthetics our sensory experience psychology cognition and well being Second the research adopts a humanistic rather than a philosophical or social science perspective in demonstrating the value of coupling anatomy and physiology with the natural and social environment In this artists from all genres are incorporated Among them are Iris Murdoch Ludwig van Beethoven Leonardo da Vinci Cristoforo de Predis Rembrandt Federico Fellini Chuck Close and David Hockney Case studies demonstrate how neuroscientific research meshes with art individual and cultural variables in ways that range from health and well being to physiological decline and biological traumas These include a case study that examines how Oliver Sacks combined biology and biography in his writings It also explores art projects in several genres inspired by his studies Another case study is on the role of film as a useful clinical tool Here the book also demonstrates that cinematic devices used by filmmakers intersect with perceptual and cognitive neuroscience A defining feature of the analysis is the integration of research on brain injuries with humanistic responses in film literature and the visual arts This section outlines the lack of consensus regarding the causes and treatment of shell shock in World War I before introducing how research and art now work with PTSD TBI Finally the book examines therapeutic cases of professional and non professional artists concluding with a discussion of synesthesia and the senses

The Mind Electric Pria Anand,2025-06-10 In this collection of medical tales reminiscent of Oliver Sacks the best of medical writing Abraham Verghese author of The Covenant of Water a neurologist reckons with the stories we tell about our brains and the stories our brains tell us A girl believes she has been struck blind for stealing a kiss A mother watches helplessly as each of her children is replaced by a changeling A woman is haunted each month by the same four chords of a single song In neurology illness is inextricably linked with narrative the clues to unraveling these mysteries hidden in both the details of a patient s story and the tells of their body Stories are etched into the very structure of our brains coded so deeply that the impulse for storytelling survives and even surges after the most devastating injuries But our brains are also porous the stories they concoct shaped by cultural narratives about bodies and illness that permeate the minds of doctors and patients alike In the history of medicine some stories are heard while others the narratives of women of Black and brown people of displaced people of disempowered people are too often dismissed In The Mind Electric neurologist Pria Anand reveals through case study history fable and memoir all that the medical establishment has overlooked the complexity and wonder of brains in health and in extremis and the vast gray area between sanity and insanity doctor and patient and illness and wellness each separated from the next by the thin veneer of a different story Moving from the Boston hospital where she treats her patients to her childhood years in India to Isla Providencia in the Caribbean and to the Republic of Guinea in West Africa she demonstrates again and again the compelling paradox at the heart of neurology that even the most peculiar symptoms can show us something universal about ourselves as humans
