The theme discusses water's importance to energy generation, the environment, food, and agriculture. It begins with an analysis of the interrelations between water and the environment. Consideration is given to the relationship between water and human health, water's dynamic role in the food production process, ecosystem character, water quality and environment, climate change, and water resources. Water resources for agricultural and food production, water balance in agriculture, areas of water contamination from rural production systems, and water interactions with human development are considered. Economic development and cultural development are also considered. These two volumes are aimed at the following five major target audiences: University and College students, Educators, Professional practitioners, Research personnel, and Policy analysts, Managers, and Decision makers, and NGOs. Sessional Papers Great Britain.
