Building Community Capacity Avis Vidal, 2017-09-29 This book focuses on a gap in current social work practice theory community change Much work in this area of macro practice particularly around grassroots community organizing has a somewhat dated feel to it is highly ideological in orientation or

suffers from superficiality particularly in the area of theory and practical application Set against the context of an often narrowly constructed clinical emphasis on practice education coupled with social work s own current rendering of scientific management community practice often takes second or third billing in many professional curricula despite its deep roots in the overall field of social welfare Drawing on extensive case study data from three significant community building initiatives program data from numerous other community capacity building efforts key informant interviews and an excellent literature review Chaskin and his colleagues draw implications for crafting community change strategies as well as for creating and sustaining the organizational infrastructure necessary to support them The authors bring to bear the perspectives of a variety of professional disciplines including sociology urban planning psychology and social work Building Community Capacity takes a collaborative interdisciplinary approach to a subject of wide and current concern the role of neighborhood and community structures in the delivery of human services or as the authors put it a place where programs and problems can be fitted together Social work scholars and students of community practice seeking new conceptual frameworks and insights from research to inform novel community interventions will find much of value in Building Community Capacity Building Community Capacity Robert J. Chaskin, This book focuses on a gap in current social work practice theory community change Much work in this area of macro practice particularly around grassroots community organizing has a somewhat dated feel to it is highly ideological in orientation or suffers from superficiality particularly in the area of theory and practical application Set against the context of an often narrowly constructed clinical emphasis on practice education coupled with social work s own current rendering of scientific management community practice often takes second or third billing in many professional curricula despite its deep roots in the overall field of social welfare Drawing on extensive case study data from three significant community building initiatives program data from numerous other community capacity building efforts key informant interviews and an excellent literature review Chaskin and his colleagues draw implications for crafting community change strategies as well as for creating and sustaining the organizational infrastructure necessary to support them The authors bring to bear the perspectives of a variety of professional disciplines including sociology urban planning psychology and social work Building Community Capacity takes a collaborative interdisciplinary approach to a subject of wide and current concern the role of neighborhood and community structures in the delivery of human services or as the authors put it a place where programs and problems can be fitted together Social work scholars and students of community practice seeking new conceptual frameworks and insights from research to inform novel community interventions will find much of value in Building Community Capacity Public Health Reports ,2000 Collaborating against Human Trafficking Kirsten Foot,2015-09-03 In the fight against human trafficking cross sector collaboration is vital but often systemic tensions undermine the effectiveness of these alliances Kirsten Foot explores the most potent sources of such difficulties offering insights and tools that leaders in every sector can use to re think the power dynamics of partnering

Weaving together perspectives from many sectors including business donor foundations mobilization and advocacy NGOs faith communities and survivor activists as well as government agencies law enforcement and providers of victim services Foot assesses how differences in social location financial well being race gender etc and sector based values contribute to interpersonal inter organizational and cross sector challenges She convincingly demonstrates that finding constructive paths through such multi level tensions by employing a mix of shared leadership strategic planning and particular practices of communication and organization can in turn facilitate more robust and sustainable collaborative efforts An appendix provides exercises for use in building evaluating and trouble shooting multi sector collaborations as well as links to online tools and recommendations for additional resources All royalties from this book go to nonprofits in U S cities dedicated to facilitating cross sector collaboration to end human trafficking For more information and related resources please visit <http://CollaboratingAgainstTrafficking.info>
