Service Oriented Java Business Integration Binildas A. Christudas, 2008 The book covers all concepts with examples that can be built deployed and run by readers using the Apache Ant tool in Apache ServiceMix which is an open source Enterprise Service Bus that combines the functionality of a Service Oriented Architecture SOA and an Event Driven Architecture EDA The aim of this book is to prepare an architect or developer for building integration solutions using ESB To that end this book takes a practical approach emphasizing how to get things done in ServiceMix with code When needed it delves into the theoretical aspects of ESB and such discussions are supplemented with working samples The book thus distils some of the knowledge that has emerged over the last decade in the realm of Java Integration This book is aimed at Java developers and integration architects who want to become proficient with the Java Business Integration JBI standard Readers should have some experience with Java and have developed and deployed applications in the past but need no previous knowledge of JBI The book can also be useful to anyone who is struggling to understand ESB and how it differs from other architectures and to understand its position in SOA This book primarily targets IT professionals in the field of SOA and Integration solutions a in other words intermediate to advanced users You are likely to find the book useful if you fall into any of the following categories A programmer designer or architect in Java who wants to learn and code in JBI or ESB A programmer designer or architect who doesn't normally code in Java can still benefit from this book since we assemble integration components using XML with little to no Java code An IT Manager or an Officer who knows well about SOA or SOI but want to see something in code you can adorn your flashy presentations with some live code too composite applications Modelling Autonomic Communication Environments Rob Brennan, Joel Fleck II, Sven van der Meer, 2010-10-19 We are delighted to present the proceedings of the 5th International Workshop on Modeling Autonomic Communication Environments MACE 2010. This workshop was held as part of the 6th International Conference on Network and Service Management CNSM 2010, formerly known as and building on the success of the MANWEK conference series. This year we met just a hundred yards away from Niagara Falls in Canada, a very exciting location. MACE started as an experiment and over the past years has created a small yet very active community that convened again this year to discuss and evaluate new advances, innovative ideas, and solid developments. The main focus of MACE, combining modeling with communications, is certainly a hard topic that requires a lot of discussion; thus the work presented at the workshop is intrinsically debatable and might not be as practiced as in other well-established workshops, but this was the nature of MACE from the beginning. New ideas, sometimes more, sometimes less rough around the edges, and some of them even inside, are submitted and provoke extensive discussions. The field in which we are working relies on these discussions, or even adventures, and we have this year again strongly motivated and supported a variety of novel work in the technical program. This year the submissions, while being closely related to the main themes, brought some new areas into the workshop. We still see architectural design and the application of autonomic principles to networks and services, but we also now have submissions looking into previously unexplored areas such as Home Area Networks, multimedia, streaming, virtualization, federation, and user experience. This portrays a maturity in the domain which has by now gone through several cycles and improves its outputs by applying the lessons learned.
