Ship Work Breakdown Structure Swbs:

The National Shipbuilding Research Program. 1997 Ship Production Symposium, Paper Number 16: Towards a Generic Product-Oriented Work Breakdown Structure for Shipbuilding ,1997 U S Navy ship acquisitions are currently managed using the Ship Work Breakdown Structure or SWBS which decomposes ships by separating out their operational systems This was effective in an era when the entire ship procurement program was physically accomplished using a ship system orientation However this is no longer the case and the right type of design and management information is not being collected and analyzed under SWBS This paper reports the results of a cooperative effort on the part of shipyards academia and the Navy to develop a generic product oriented work breakdown structure This new work breakdown structure is a cross shipyard hierarchical representation of work associated with the design and production of a ship using today s industry practice It is designed to a support design for production trade offs and investigation of alternative design and production scenarios at the early stages of ship acquisition b supply a framework for improved cost and schedule modeling c translate into and out of existing shipbuilding work breakdown structures d incorporate system specifiers within its overall product oriented environment e improve data transfer among design production planning cost estimating procurement and production personnel using a common framework and description of both the material and labor content of a ship project and f provide a structure for 3 D product modeling data organization Department of the Navy RDT&E Management Guide United States. Human Factors for Naval Marine Vehicle Design and Operation Jonathan M. Ross, 2017-03-02 There is a driving need for naval professionals to focus on human factors issues The number of maritime accidents is increasing and the chief cause is human error both by the designer and the operator Decreasing crew size lack of experienced operators operations in higher sea states and fatigue worsen the situation Automation can be a partial solution but flawed automated systems actually contribute to accidents at sea Up to now there has been no overarching resource available to naval marine vehicle designers and human factors professionals which bridges the gap between the human and the machine in this context Designers understand the marine vehicle human factors professionals understand how a particular environment affects people Yet neither has a practical understanding of the other's field and thus communicating requirements and solutions is difficult This book integrates knowledge from numerous sources as well as the advice of a panel of eight recognized experts in the fields of related research development and operation The result is a reference that bridges the communications gap and stands to help enhance the design and operation of all naval marine vehicles
