DIGESTIVE SYSTEM EXPERIMENT

Introduction:

Within this setting, participants gain an understanding of the distinctions between mechanical and chemical digestion, essential processes employed by the body to decompose food. Mechanical digestion involves physical actions like chewing and mashing to reduce food into smaller particles, while chemical digestion utilizes enzymes, specifically pepsin, to facilitate the breakdown of food substances.

Materials:

- 1 banana
- 2 additive crackers
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 2 Paper cups (1. replace in the bottom)
- Bowl
- Sealable plastic bag
- Scissors
- Stocking/Pipette
- Paper towel

Procedure:

1. Place your paper towel in the center of your table.
2. Place the crackers and banana in the plastic bag (Food going into the mouth).
3. Add the water (add). Seal the bag and mash the mixture for 30 seconds (chewing).
4. Add the orange juice (stomach acid). Seal the bag and mash the mixture for 30 seconds (stomach digestion).
5. Place the plastic bag and stocking over a tray. Cut a small hole in the corner of the bag and transfer the contents into the stocking (small intestine).
6. Squeeze the food through the stocking.
7. The liquid that ends up in the tray represents the nutrients that are absorbed by the body and used for growth and energy.
8. The food that remains inside the stocking represents the waste that can't be absorbed by the body.
9. Cut the toe off the stocking and squeeze the remaining food out of the end and into the plastic cup (large intestine).
10. Finally, push the food (waste) through the bottom of the cup and into a bowl (represents going to the toilet).

Excerpt from Experiments and Observations on the Gastric Juice and the Physiology of Digestion

The reasons which have induced me to reprint the present work from the American original are 1st A strong sense of its inherent importance and of the numerous applications which may be made of the facts and principles developed in it to the prevention and cure of disease 2dly Its comparative inaccessibility to the European physiologist from the difficulty which still exists of procuring it on this side of the Atlantic and lastly An earnest desire that the author should obtain that credit which is unquestionably due to his disinterested and indefatigable labours

The value of Dr Beaumont's experiments consists partly in the admirable opportunities for observation which he enjoyed and partly in the candid and truth seeking spirit in which all his inquiries seem to have been conducted
